(UPI TELEPHOTO)

ABOARD USS HORNET (AP) — Apollo 11's isolated astronauts cruised toward landfall in Hawaii today and a flight to Houston where they face 16 days additional quarantine against possible moon bugs.

A select audience of scientists were scheduled for the first viewing today of the moon rocks and soil brought home by the crew of Apollo 11. Story on page 14.

They will be lodged in the same building where scientists today opened the boxes of rocks that Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. collected on the moon Sunday.

The two boxes were flown to Houston Friday, weighted, sterilized and kept overnight in a vacuum chamber. Their opening would give geologists and scientists their first look at material from another celestial body.

The boxes were opened in glass vacuum chambers and handled with mechanical devices by men reaching through glove ports.

In Quarantine Van

Armstrong, Aldrin and Michael Collins remained in their silver quarantine van as the Hornet churned northeastward toward a 2 p.m. EDT arrival in Honolulu, where Gov. John Burns and thousands of Hawaiians planned to greet the heroes who flew man's first moon landing mission.

The van will be moved by truck to Hickam Air Force Base for the flight by C141 transport to Ellington AFB near Houston. The arrival was scheduled for 2:35 a.m. Sunday.

Dr. William Carpenter, the space agency doctor in the van with the astronauts, reported Friday that Armstrong's slight ear infection had disappeared, and said all three men were in excellent condition.

"We are all through with taking samples and tests—from now on there will be just one brief examination a day until we get to Houston," Carpenter said.

The astronauts appeared at the window of their trailer Friday and joined the ship's crew in singing hymns and offering prayers.

Speaking into a microphone, Aldrin asked the crewmen present on the hangar deck to join him and the other two astronauts in silent tribute to the men who died paving a path to the moon.

experiences of centuries into a few days."

Collins thanked the men of the Hornet for the "wonderful" recovery Thursday, and Armstrong spoke of "Columbia, the gem of the oceans of space, and Hornet, the gem of the oceans on earth."

Columbia was the name the astronauts gave their command ship.

No Personal Contact

The families of the astronauts and additional thousands were expected at Ellington to cheer the astronauts. There will be no personal contact. Conversation will be via microphone, with the astronauts looking out a trailer window.

The van will be transported four miles by truck to a lunar-receiving laboratory at the Manned Spacecraft Center, where the astronauts will move through a plastic tunnel into comfortable quarantine quarters. There will be 15 persons with them, including the doctor and engineer presently closed in the van, other doctors, technicians, stewards and a cook.

Nixon Issues Warning As Asian Tour Begins

By MERRIMAN SMITH

MANILA (UPI) — President Nixon began his tour of Asia today with the warning that peace in this turbulent part of the world "cannot come from the United States" but from Asians themselves. Anti-U.S. demonstrations marked his visit.

A man identified as a Communist Huk "liquidation squad" member was killed by police before Nixon arrived from Guam and authorities were investigating the possibility of an assassination plot. Two demonstrations were staged in downtown Manila to protest the President's visit, but no large-scale outbreaks developed.

In an arrival statement at the international airport, Nixon expanded on a briefing for newsmen on Guam Thursday night when he said the United States would avoid future Vietnam and encourage the Asian allies to rely on their own forces for defense.

Ten hours before he arrived, police shot and killed a man in a gun battle near the Intercontinental Hotel where Nixon later appeared to meet with opposition Filipino political leaders. They said Alberto Batac was a central Luzon Huk rebel but refused to confirm a report he had a sketch of the hotel in his pocket.

Officials said they were investigating a possible assassination plot. Thousands of police and soldiers were on the alert to prevent major anti-U.S. outbreaks.

Leftist and nationalist youths 700 strong gathered around the U.S. embassy and tore down American flags while about 60 policemen looked on.

Another 500 students demonstrated outside the presidential palace with signs reading "Why not send your bombers to the moon?" About 500 more, including some peasants and workers started marching toward the embassy carrying "Nixon go home" signs.

The President, making his rounds by helicopter, did not see them. He plunged immediately into the problems besetting the United States and its Asian allies.

Weather Hot and Humid

The weather was overcast, hot and humid as the silver presidential jetliner, Air Force One, landed at 12:33 p.m. (12:33 a.m. EDT). Nixon in a dark blue business suit and Mrs.

Nixon in a shocking pink summery dress beamed and smiled at the cheering crowd of approximately 15,000 persons at the airport.

The President was welcomed by President and Mrs. Ferdinand E. Marcos, both old friends of the Nixons, and quickly got to the point of his visit after usual honor guard ceremonies and the playing of national anthems.

Nixon said he wanted to speak "candidly to my friends in the Philippines because I know you like straight talk." He then spelled out his approach to U.S. policy in Asia: "But if peace is to come from Asia—and I emphasize this point—the United States will play its part and provide its fair share. But peace in Asia cannot come from the United States. It must come from Asia. The people of Asia, the governments of Asia. They are the ones who must lead the way to peace in Asia."

Will Hold Talks

The President was to spend 23 hours in Manila holding talks with Marcos and other officials. The Philippines has a 2,300-man semi-military force of engineers and technicians in South Vietnam. Traditional Filipino-American ties have become strained. And in recent months, Marcos has eased some strictures against Communist aid in this country, beset with severe economic problems.

A state banquet was to be held tonight with a reception and dancing to follow. The Nixons were staying at Malacanang Palace, the Philippine presidential residence, and heavy guard details were in evidence near the palace and other government buildings.

Nixon referred to the moon landing to two American astronauts in remarks at the airport and said "if man can reach the moon," then he can "bring peace to the earth."

"And that should be the great lesson of that great space journey for all of us."

The President spoke slowly, with emphasis, as he addressed the airport crowd in the only English-speaking nation in Asia.

Next stop this weekend was Jakarta and then from Monday to Thursday the Nixons would be in Thailand to confer with Thai officials and U.S. envoys from eight Asian nations. Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, also was to be in Bangkok.

His 24,000-mile trip was to end Aug. 3, 11 days after he set out for the Pacific to welcome the returning Apollo 11 crew.

Sen. Kennedy Tells a Dramatic Story

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy has put his fabled political future on the line before a divided public after a pretty secretary's death that left haunting questions still unanswered today.

Kennedy announced Friday night he may resign from the U.S. Senate if Massachusetts voters have lost confidence in him because of the car accident which killed his young blonde passenger on a lonely island road a week ago.

The first swelling tide of telegrams and telephone calls in his home state ran strongly in support of the senator. But across the nation, the doubts lingered. "I still trust him. But I can't think a lot of people do," said a college student in Pittsburgh.

Kennedy, in an unprecedented national television appearance, said there is "no truth whatever" to ugly rumors of immoral conduct that shadow the accident. "Nor was I driving under the influence of liquor," he added.

Kennedy told a dramatic story of a night of tragedy and horror in which he twice brushed against the very brink of death, of nearly becoming the third brother to die in sudden calamity while at a pinnacle of American political power.

And in those terrible moments, he said, he questioned "whether some awful curse did actually hang over all the Kennedys."

The 37-year-old senator told of the water rushing into his lungs as he fought to escape his sunken car after it plunged off a bridge into an estuary. And he said he nearly drowned again as he swam across a channel from the island to the village where he had been staying.

This was the first explanation of how Kennedy got off the island in the nine hours between the accident and the time he walked into the police station in Edgartown to report the death. And the swim seemed to raise more new questions instead of quieting old ones.

Kennedy appeared on national television on the same day he pleaded guilty in court to leaving the scene of an accident. A two-month sentence was suspended and he was placed on probation for one year. The senator said his failure to report the accident immediately was "indefensible." He said he was confused, tortured, tired. He indicated he still did not remember all that happened in the nine-hour period.

In Berkeley Heights, N.J., the mother of the victim, Mrs. Joseph Koepchne, came out onto a neighbor's front porch after the broadcast to say in a halting voice "I am satisfied with the senator's statement—and do hope he decides to stay in the Senate."

Kennedy's fellow Democrats hailed the speech. Republicans were generally silent.

Until the accident, Kennedy, the No. 2 Democrat in the Senate as assistant majority leader, had been regarded as a front-runner for the 1972 nomination for the presidency—the prize that brought his two brothers to violent death.

Kennedy's speech was his first explanation beyond a brief statement to police last Saturday.

Area reaction—some good, some bad. Story on page 14.

It still left unanswered these key questions:

Why Kennedy was on the dirt road leading to the narrow wooden bridge where his car plunged into a salt-water inlet? The senator told police he made a wrong turn driving Miss Koepchne to the island ferry after a reunion party. At a T-intersection, the only paved road on the island turns left toward the ferry and is marked with an arrow; the dirt road goes right. In the television speech, he made no mention at all of the turn.

—What happened when he plunged into the water to swim from the island to Edgartown? Kennedy said two friends, Joseph Gargan and Paul Markham, had helped him dive for Miss Koepchne after the accident. He said he was confused and in shock. Kennedy said they took him to the ferry landing and he suddenly jumped into the water to begin swimming, almost drowning in the crossing.

Did Gargan and Markham watch his struggle without telephoning authorities for help? Or, if they had left and were unaware of the swim, weren't they concerned about where the troubled Kennedy had gone? Why did they take no apparent action that would have summoned officials?

Gargan, who is Kennedy's cousin, and Markham could not be reached for comment.

VANDALISM: Some Cases in City Parks

By JON POWERS

KINGSTON

Kingston Recreation Department officials have asked city residents to treat park facilities with more care after suspected acts of vandalism were reported at Block and Forsyth Parks recently.

Andrew J. Murphy III, Recreation Department Superintendent, told The Freeman that youngsters using park facilities should be warned that swimming pools and equipment cannot tolerate additional abuse.

Murphy's statement came after a city sewer crew rodded out the drain at the Block Park pool and discovered a variety of items that were clogging the system.

Found in the drain were a beer can, four balls, a dolls head, a rock, and numerous sticks and rags. The pool, rodded out for the third time this summer, is used by some 100 children during the daily program sponsored by the Recreation Department. The pool was rodded out earlier this summer but the debris in the filter system was so extensive that a Roto-Rooter was required to complete the job.

While it is normal for any pool filter to be clogged by foreign substances, Murphy stated that they have found several items that were obviously placed there maliciously.

"The vandals don't necessarily have to be kids," said Murphy. "They could be older persons as well." But, commented Murphy, if the youngsters do their part in preventing these occurrences, then the city pools can be protected from additional damage. The Superintendent added that the 30-year-old pools can't withstand much more abuse.

City police patrol all of the parks regularly, but have been unable to collar any of the delinquents so far. Since the parks are supervised during the day, Murphy said the vandals strike exclusively at night.

Most of the vandalism is apparently meant as a harmless prank. But Murphy said that off when the lock on the bear cage at Forsyth Park was broken recently, the incident went beyond prank stage and could have been tragic.

Because of a substantial amount of sand, dirt and grass that is thrown into all the city's pools every day, Murphy said that each pool has to be cleaned and scrubbed to maintain health standards.

Murphy, however, doesn't feel that a "crime wave" has struck the City of Kingston. "We have reported a lot less vandalism than other cities of comparable size," he said, "but the vandalism here seems to come in spurts."

One preventive dose that city officials have so far initiated to prevent recurrences of vandalism is to close all of the parks at 10 p.m. every night. Persons found on park property past this hour are subject to arrest on a charge of loitering.

Moon Volume Almost Ready

Footprints on the Moon—Our astronauts have done it and the Associated Press is preparing a commemorative volume about the historic achievement.

The book which is expected to be ready for distribution by Aug. 18 is being made available to Freeman readers. Copies may be ordered through the coupon on page 7 of today's issue.

Even now John Barbour, the Associated Press space specialist who has had a prominent part in reporting the front page news of the moon landing is writing the final chapters of the big book. The text will be illustrated by full color photographs including those taken by the astronauts.

Footprints on the Moon will contain 224 pages and approximately 150 photographs in full color. The first printing runs to 100,000 copies. Paper has been ordered for another 100,000 copies. Across the United States, nearly 700 Associated Press newspapers like this one will be participating in the distribution of the book at the special price of $5. In addition, the book will be translated into 10 foreign languages.

Preparations for the book started even before the astronauts had landed on the moon with completed portions whirring off the presses as Astronauts Neil Armstrong, Edwin Aldrin and Michael Collins whirled through space toward their magnificent achievement.

With the history makers safely splashed down and sitting out their quarantine, debriefing, Barbour is putting the final touches on the moon walk saga. Astronauts' photographs are expected from NASA by early August making possible the Aug. 18 availability of the book. Freeman readers will want to be among the first to have a copy of Footprints on the Moon, a magnificent account of man's kind's great leap. Orders will be accepted by coupon only.

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

Among the great churches of the world, the Cathedral of Notre Dame in Paris, France, is a monument to the religious history and faith of a city and a nation.

Situated on the eastern tip of the Isle de la Cité (an island in the Seine River) it has stood for 800 years. The land has always been sacred. In Carolingian times (7th to 9th centuries) there existed two churches, one dedicated to the Virgin Mary, the other to St. Stephen, and before that it was the site of ancient Pagan shrines.

The cornerstone for Notre Dame was laid by Pope Alexander III in 1163 and the building of the Cathedral lasted for nearly 200 years. It holds some of the finest examples of early Gothic architecture and sculpture and the great Rose Window is one of the most beautiful stained-glass windows of 13th century art.

This artist-writer recently had the stirring experience of attending a Sunday morning service in one of the many chapels around the chancel. The early morning sunlight streamed through the great Rose Window and played on the faces around me as it had done on others for hundreds of years. There was an aura of intense reverence and peace. Walking through the Cathedral one senses the security and lasting qualities of faith, for it was echoed in each stone of this national shrine.

'Edifice Complex' Modern Church Flaw

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Churches in the United States own about $102 billion worth of land and buildings.

The figure comes from a recent study by Martin A. Larson and C. Stanley Lowell. It is frankly an estimate and may be off by a few billion either way. But it gives an indication how deeply churches are involved in the real estate business.

The edifice complex of contemporary Christianity is a stark contrast to the example of the early church. During its first and most dynamic century, the church was too busy spreading the Gospel to worry about building programs.

The world "church" in those days denoted a body of people, not a place. Christians met for worship in private homes, in catacombs, in open fields.

Today, the first thing on the agenda for most new congregations is to put up "a building of our own." No matter how well a congregation may be getting along in temporary quarters, its members can hardly wait to take on the burden of a big mortgage and the upkeep of a building that may be in use only two or three hours a week.

This is a woeful situation, according to Dr. Donald L. Houser, executive secretary of the Board of American Missions, Lutheran Church in America. He is urging Lutherans to recover the outlook of the early church by emphasizing mission and ministry rather than structure and facilities.

In the future, Houser contends, building a church should be considered "a last resort." Before even considering such a step, a congregation should explore all possibilities of services in such locations as storefronts, recreation rooms of high rise apartment buildings and trailer units or multiple-purpose service centers.

A few brave and innovative congregations already are demonstrating that it can be done. In Lombard, Ill., a suburb of Chicago, a Lutheran congregation called the Community of Christ the Servant is using a renovated barn as a base for a ministry that includes a youth program, a theater program, operation of a coffee house and a weekly fine arts festival.

Similar congregations—without churches can be found in New York, Washington, Los Angeles and many other cities.

If they are the pioneers of a major new trend in American religious life, as Houser believes, the public image of the church may change from rich landlord to humble servant—a change most congenial to the teaching and example of its founder.

Felician Sisters Health Care Site

The Felician Sisters of the New England Province are planning a chronic and convalescent facility on the Enfield, Conn., grounds which will provide comprehensive, in-patient care. The 135-bed facility will be called Longview Health Care Center of Our Lady of the Angels.

Besides education, the Sisters are active in the medical field. The Enfield Province, founded in 1932, has maintained St. Joseph Hospital in Bangor, Me., since 1947, first as a 36-bed hospital which was supplanted by new construction in 1964 for 130 beds.

The Congregation of Felician Sisters was founded in Warsaw, Poland in 1885. In 1894 the first group of five Sisters came to America and the American foundation has grown in number so that today there are seven provinces and one vice-province in the United States. The Felician Sisters of Our Lady of the Angels Province staff Immaculate Conception in Kingston.

The Sunday school welcomes visitors and enrolls pupils up to the age of 20. Beginning lessons include the Ten Commandments, the Beatitudes, and the Lord's Prayer. Older classes are taught by means of questions and answers based on the daily Lesson-Sermon found in The Christian Science Quarterly.

In loving memory of our dear Mother, Mrs. John (Josephine) Liccardo, who departed this life, 29 years ago, July 26, 1940.

It is only a grave, but still needs care.
For the one we love, is sleeping there.

Some may forget her, now that she is gone.
But we will remember, no matter how long.
We miss her, when we need a friend.

On her we could always depend.
She cheered us in sickness,
and soothed our pain.
God grant some day we'll meet her again.

State Fair Flower Show Has August 7 Deadline

Aquarius, Aries, Gemini, Mars and Venus are some of the "Heavenly Sign Posts" which will be used for competitions at the 1969 New York State Fair Flower Show.

The future is the theme for the State Fair and many of the floral exhibits and arrangements will depict this concept.

The 1969 State Fair Flower Show is expected to be the biggest ever as thousands of entries are expected to compete for $12,145 in premiums in the show's 1,100 classes for both amateur and commercial entries.

Artistic displays featuring the future will be competing for top honors in their class in one of the Nation's largest flower shows. Recognized for its size and diversity, the show will feature new flower arrangements and displays each day.

Deadline for entries is August 7. The State Fair starts August 26 and runs through Labor Day, September 1, at the Fairgrounds in Syracuse.

The horticulture division will feature garden, junior and senior garden flowers, commercial and amateur African Violet Show, Gladiolus Show, Dahlia Show and a two-day Rose Show.

Each day at the Fair, groups from the Federated Garden Clubs of New York State will conduct a series of four demonstrations illustrating the technique and art of flower arrangements. These groups will be vying for $700 in premiums.

The educational division of the Flower Show will offer gardeners an opportunity to get help with their problems. This division will offer educational exhibits by prominent clubs and organizations in the horticulture field. Such organizations as the Rose Society, Men's Garden Club of America and the Empire

State Gladiolus will have displays and attendants to answer questions.

The Men's Garden Club of America will feature exhibits on the advantages of gardening as a hobby. A free lawn clinic will inform gardeners how to make their grass grow and how to keep it attractive. Additional demonstrations will be given on corsages, gladiolus and dahlias.

Ten commercial flower displays highlighting the show theme, "The Future - Space Age," will be coordinated by New York State Flower Growers committee. The displays will feature modern arrangements and use of flowers in home and social life. The New York State Flower Growers Trophy will be awarded to the outstanding exhibit in the commercial section. Plaques will be awarded the designers of the Outstanding exhibits.

For further information, write: Entry Department, New York State Fair, Syracuse, New York 13209.

Tiny Tips

SELF-CLEANING BLENDER
The container of a blender can be self-cleaning by using this method: Add a dash of soap to a half full container of warm water and turn on the machine for a few seconds. Rinse and dry.

MATCH WITH WALLPAPER
Try new wall coverings that have matching fabrics to go with them. You can make attractive pillows, drapes, curtains and seat coverings to match or coordinate with your wallpaper.

BATHE AWAY SNIPS
Home haircuts for small children should be followed by a bath to remove any snips of hair which may prove itchy or irritating to a baby's sensitive skin.

Meatloaf Goes Undercover!

Look what has gone under cover—under a flaky crust, under a bright bandana—meatloaf, a perennial favorite! This recipe from both budget and flavor appeal is special and equally delicious served hot or cold.

The secret agent is a liquid gravy seasoning sauce, a flavor booster that eliminates the need for most other spices. This marvelously moist concoction of ground beef, crumbs, eggs, gravy seasoning and catsup goes incognito under its cover of refrigerated crescent rolls. Canned ham also performs well under cover. Its sweet piquant flavor is sure to make it one of your warm weather favorites.

Cream gravy, a frosty drink and on to the food.

Undercover Meat Loaves

1½ pounds ground beef
½ cup soft white bread crumbs
2 eggs beaten
¼ cup catsup
2 tablespoons Gravy Master
Dash dry thyme
1 package refrigerated crescent rolls

Combine ground beef, crumbs, eggs, catsup, gravy seasoning, and thyme. Shape into 4 individual meat loaves, 5x3x2. Place on jelly roll pan. Wrap 2 crescent roll dough pieces around each loaf. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, 50 minutes, or until crusts are golden. Remove loaves to heated platter with pancake turner. Make Creamy Gravy to serve with meat loaves.

Undercover Ham Loaf

1 canned ham (2 pounds)
¼ cup brown sugar
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
2 tablespoons Gravy Master
1 package refrigerated crescent rolls

Combine sugar, mustard and gravy seasoning. Coat the ham with mixture. Wrap roll dough around ham. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees for 30 minutes or until crust is golden. Serve with Creamy Gravy.

Creamy Gravy. Remove all but 4 tablespoons fat from pan; stir in 4 tablespoons flour and cook until bubbling. Stir in 1 cup milk and 1 cup water; cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and boils 1 minute. Stir in 1 teaspoon gravy seasoning and brown sauce for flavor and color. Makes 2 cups.

Meatloaf

GOOD GRAVY! It doesn't take a detective to find out why this undercover meatloaf is so delectable. Liquid gravy seasoning sauce is the secret agent here. The result: a marvelously moist concoction of ground beef, bread crumbs and eggs. Equally good hot or cold.

Port Ewen Club Planning Fall Programming Here

The executive committee of Port Ewen Crafts and Laughs Club held a meeting July 22 at the home of Dorothy Bell at which time the 1969-70 program was established.

The program will include basket weaving, aluminum etching, and plastic bottle projects. Meetings will be held every third Tuesday beginning Sept. 16 at Port Ewen Reformed Church, Salem Street, Port Ewen.

Prospective members should contact one of the following officers: Mrs. Dorothy Bell, Mrs. Mary Ellen Wunderlich, Mrs. Frances Gualtieri, and Mrs. Irene Emberson.

September meeting will be a demonstration of Chinese cookery by Fran Windram.

FOR PRETTIER FLOWERS

A teaspoonful of detergent added to a quart of water is a reliable formula for reviving partly wilted cut flowers, according to a report from Cornell University's Floriculture Dept. Furthermore, a flower specialist at the University of Wisconsin advises that flowers will last longer if kept in a clean container which has been washed with hot suds.

WASH BOTH SIDES

It's best to wash both sides of a foam-backed vinyl place mat, because a stain which appears to be on the vinyl side may actually be imbedded in the foam. A vegetable brush dipped in soap or detergent suds makes an effective scrubber for this purpose.

By ELIZABETH L. POST
Of The Emily Post Institute

Problem of Pocketbooks

Dear Mrs. Post: Could you tell me the proper thing to do with a pocketbook when you are visiting? Is it kept with you or put in a closet or bedroom?—Virginia J.

Dear Virginia: If you don't need your pocketbook for cigarettes, handkerchiefs, lip-stick, etc., you may leave it in the closet or bedroom with your coat. If you prefer to keep it with you, you may set it on the floor by your chair, or on a side table or surface where it will be handy, but not in anyone's way.

Invitation to Private Funeral

Dear Mrs. Post: When a person is invited to attend a private funeral, is he free to take a spouse or other family member with him when no specific mention of such persons has been made?—Miriam Tucker

Dear Mrs. Tucker: If the spouse of the person invited was also acquainted with the deceased, he or she might also attend the funeral service. If they had never met, however, the one invited should go alone. In no event should other members of the family attend without being specifically invited.

Italiano Rice Salad

ITALIANO RICE SALAD

It's time to relax! Mon! Take off your chef's hat and hand it over to Dad or the children. In summer the simplest form of cooking is appreciated by all; therefore, it is easy for the cook to have a night "off-duty."

Italiano Rice Salad is a hearty cold main dish salad bursting with the flavor goodness reminiscent of old Italy. But the work involved is distinctive of convenience foods. It is EASY to prepare!

Long grain white rice with bell peppers and parsley, is tossed with garden fresh sweet peas, provolone cheese, salami, celery and Italian seasoned salad dressing. The rice comes frozen and completely seasoned. Because you prepare it in its own convenience cooking pouch there are no messy pots and pans to clean! For easy planning, the salad can be prepared in advance and can be kept for several days.

Dad or the children would be proud to serve this salad for a patio supper or luncheon meal. It is not fancy—just plain good eatin'! Bread sticks, sliced tomatoes and spumoni ice cream would make a nice addition to the meal.

Italiano Rice Salad

Two 12-oz. packages rice verdi (rice with bell peppers and parsley) frozen in convenience cooking pouch
One 8½-oz. can sweet peas, drained

½ cup sliced celery
½ cup cubed sharp American cheese or Provolone cheese

½ cup chopped salami

¼ cup chopped onion

¾ to 1 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing

¼ cup bottled Italian style salad dressing

Slip pouches of rice into boiling water. Bring water to a second boil; continue cooking 16 minutes. Do not cover pan.

Turn rice into a large bowl; fluff rice with a fork. Add peas, celery, cheese, salami and onion. Cover; chill 3 to 4 hours. Serve in lettuce-lined bowl. Yield: 6 servings.

SCRUB THOROUGHLY

Baby bottle nipples should be washed promptly after formula bottles are empty because milk residue is quick to harbor bacteria. Keep a nipple brush in a jar of suds to scrub each nipple on all surfaces.

$100 Billion Food Industry

Calling harmful food products a new kind of violence—"silent violence"—Ralph Nader, the consumer advocate, chewed the $100 billion food industry before the Senate Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs.

Nader was bitter as he castigated the food industry for its practices and for institutionalized indifference to the adverse consequences to the consumer. He said it was not living up to its manufacturing, processing and merchandising responsibilities. He used such words as "Flatbatters" and "shamburgers" to describe the two most popular products of the industry.

He supported these names by the increased fat content and lowered protein content of frankfurters and the flour, cereal and chemical additives of hamburgers. Some of the blame, he said, should be shared by government agencies, concerned with food, for their inadequate research, regulation and education to the public.

Industry spokesmen will appear later to refute these charges and defend their practices and they should be given every opportunity to do so. However, it is true the more the processing of food, the greater the artificial contents which lower the protein value of the products. This is one of the prices the public pays today for the more easily handled products they seem to demand.

However, nutrition should not be sacrificed for convenience. Food preparations should be subject to standards that would preserve their nutritional value. Foods cost high enough now without losing some of their value by adulteration.

Man Against the Sea

It is often said—with greater truth now than ever before—that we know more about the surface of the moon than we do about the bottom of the ocean.

Yet even though there has been no "giant leap for mankind" in the inner space of earth to compare with that of Apollo 11 in outer space, scientific investigation into man's native environment continues apace.

At about the same time as the 360-foot-tall Saturn V rocket was lifting the Apollo and its crew of three off the pad at Cape Kennedy on the most adventurous voyage ever made into space, 49 miles to the east the 50-foot-long research submersible Ben Franklin with six men aboard was dipping into the ocean on a Gulf Stream Drift Mission, the most ambitious attempt yet made to unlock the secrets of the great current of warm water that sweeps past the coasts of North America and Europe.

The ship, commanded by famed undersea explorer, Dr. Jacques Piccard, is scheduled to drift northward in the current and emerge around August 11 at a point 200 to 300 miles southeast of the tip of Cape Cod. It will operate at depths ranging as deep as 1,800 feet—and as was the case with the men on the moon, should anything go wrong there will be no chance of rescue.

Another inquiry into the mysteries of the ocean is nearing completion. This is BOMEX—the Barbados Oceanographic and Meteorological Experiment. Begun last May, BOMEX involved the participation of seven federal departments and independent agencies, 20 universities and six industrial laboratories and the cooperation of the government of the Barbados.

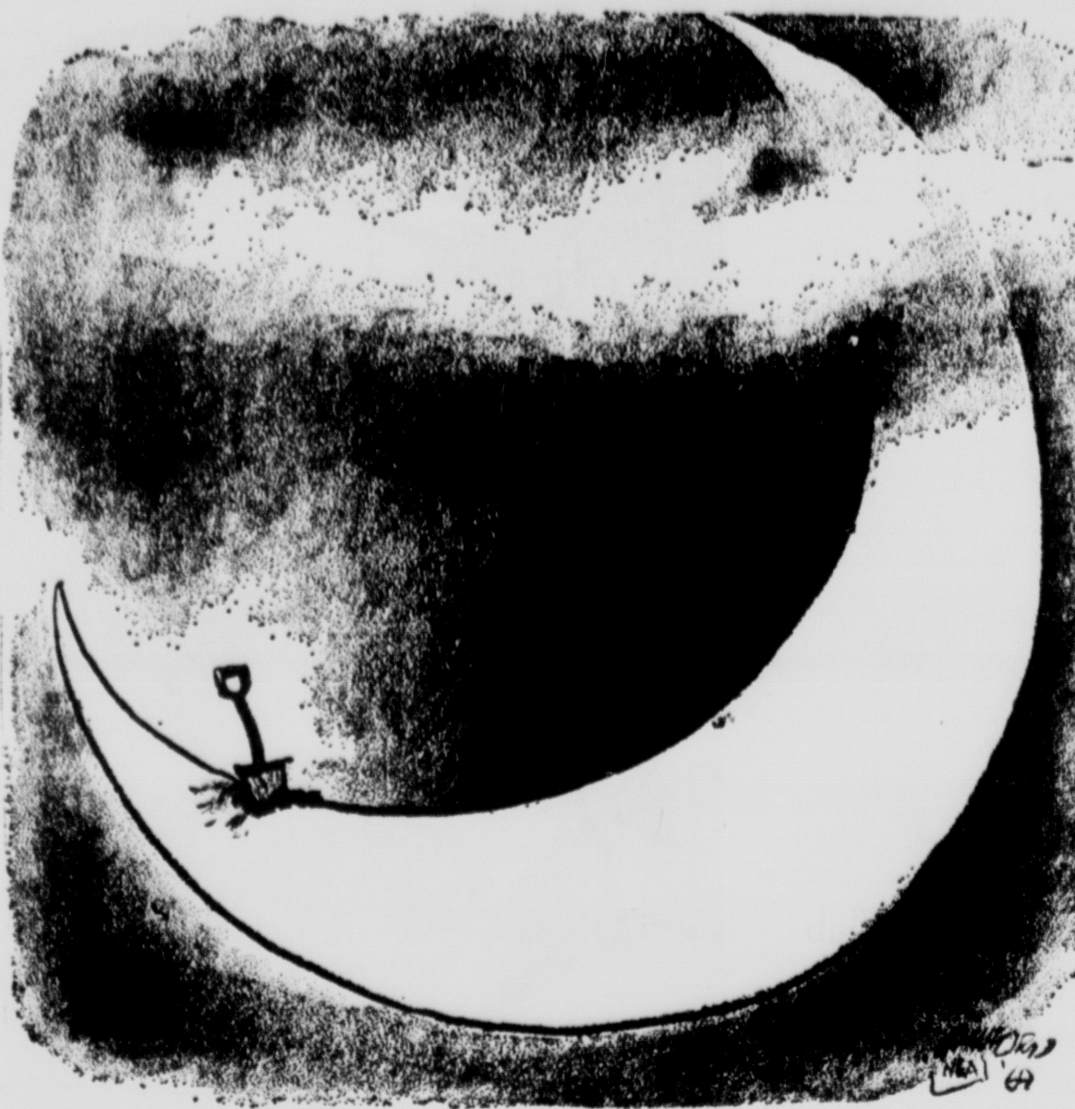

An immense "cube" of sea and air, stretching from the ocean floor 18,000 feet down to the stratosphere 100,000 feet above and covering 90,000 square miles of the Atlantic off the West Indies island, was staked out for the experiment. Into the cube converged an armada of 10 ships, 24 planes and 1,500 scientists and technicians to mount what the Environmental Science Services Administration calls "the most difficult and complex scientific effort ever conducted over a large ocean area."

The purpose of BOMEX was to study the links between the sea and the air and their interactions with the energy radiated from the sun. This mechanism is almost unknown, yet it is the primary process which drives the world's atmospheric circulation and its weather systems.

The hope is that when this process is better understood, it will be possible to extend weather predictions beyond the present few days.

In quite concrete terms, the nation's efforts in both inner and outer space are part and parcel of one grand assault on the vast unknowns of the universe man dwells in. The same company—Grumman Aerospace Corp.—built both the Ben Franklin and the Eagle lunar landing module, and BOMEX utilized the aid of several earth-orbiting satellites.

After he saw Pope Paul VI in March, President Nixon thought seriously of assigning a full-time envoy to the Vatican. Under pressure, he gave up the idea. But his own conversation was so valuable, he plans to send high officials from time to time to this most sensitive listening-post.

Pay Dirt!

David Lawrence Says 'Soak the Rich' Theory Based on Old Demagoguery

WASHINGTON, July 25 — Is Congress warming up to some of the doctrines of communism—the enemy of private capitalism—by taking away from citizens the billions of dollars which they would normally use to help maintain and build up free enterprise in America?

This question may well be asked in view of the announced determination of several members of Congress to impose on the earnings of successful citizens higher income taxes than have ever been levied before. Much is being said also about plans to reduce the deductions of upper-income persons in their contributions to charity. Where will the philanthropic institutions then get the money of which they will be deprived by the government?

The discriminatory nature of the attack on high incomes is based largely on demagoguery—the old-time cry of politicians about "soaking the rich." But estimates based on the latest treasury statistics available show that, of nearly 72 million tax returns filed, the number of taxable incomes of 100,000 dollars or more for married couples and 50,000 dollars or more for single persons is only $82,000. Out of their taxable income of 14 billion dollars a year, the government already is subtracting 7 billion dollars from this sum. Even if this category of citizens were subjected to a 100 per cent tax on their incomes above these levels, the government would get only 3 billion more, and all of these taxpayers combined would have 4 billion dollars left. The other 38,600,000 taxpayers, who provide the government with 73 billion dollars, would retain 303 billion.

There is some merit, of course, in imposing capital-gains taxes on property held for less than a year, as differentiated from long-term holdings. As a matter of fact, what Congress ought to be thinking about is how to give the citizen a "capital-loss" deduction. Congress might well examine the capital losses being suffered, not only by those in the higher-income brackets but by those with lower incomes, because the purchasing power of the dollars they receive on sales of property has been steadily diminished by inflation.

It is not clear yet what changes will be included in the tax-reform bill being drafted by the House Ways and Means Committee, but an announcement Thursday by Senator Russell Long, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, reveals that a bill may not be passed much before October 31. This implies that the extension of the surtax will continue to be an unsettled matter. To keep the country in doubt for a period of three months on what the tax rates will be is not a constructive policy.

Already universities which receive large donations are complaining and are asking their alumni to fight the proposed restrictions to be made on deductions for charitable gifts of property which have risen in value. If, for example, the capital-gains rules are changed, a prospective donor will have to pay out more in taxes and may decide that he better wait a few years until there is some further revision of the tax laws before he makes the contribution.

Probably the most serious impact will be felt by businesses which need to raise money either to start new enterprises or extend present operations. To impose higher tax rates on the appreciation of property is bound to be a disturbing development that will be widely felt. Those who have accumulated funds are, in effect, being discouraged from making the kind of investments that have so long built up and maintained the capitalistic system.

vide the government with 73 billion dollars, would retain 303 billion.

There is every likelihood that to impose higher tax rates and alter the rules for deductions may result in a drag on economic growth and the impairment of investment incentives. One of the interesting things about the 50,000 dollar income today is that it is by no means comparable in purchasing power to that same sum of money ten years ago. Much of the personal property which now has a higher sales value brings a price of more dollars but with a purchasing power not very far above what could have been bought with the dollars originally paid.

Stocks obtained, for instance, 10 years ago for 5,000 dollars might be sold in 1969 for 10,000 dollars. But after paying the capital-gains tax of 1,250 dollars and taking into account the loss in purchasing power as compared with 1959, the net amount retained is 7,000 dollars. This means that the real gain was only 2,000 dollars, or an average of 4 per cent a year.

There is some merit, of course, in imposing capital-gains taxes on property held for less than a year, as differentiated from long-term holdings. As a matter of fact, what Congress ought to be thinking about is how to give the citizen a "capital-loss" deduction. ## Drew Pearson Says Nixon and China Lobby, Is Relationship the Same?

WASHINGTON — President Nixon is now on the first lap of his visits to the islands and little countries which John Foster Dulles erected as a barrier to isolate communist China.

This policy of using small nations to hedge in the most populous country in the world has not worked well, and President Nixon has the opportunity now to change it. Whether he will do so or not is the big question in the minds of Asian diplomats. They realize that as Vice President in the Eisenhower administration Nixon was very much a part of the Dulles policy. Nevertheless, as President he has shown some signs of considering this strategy outmoded.

Dulles relied on such small countries as South Korea, Formosa, the Philippines, South Vietnam, Thailand, Pakistan, Australia, and New Zealand. They have proved themselves weak and unreliable allies, some of them requiring billions of American dollars to bolster their defenses. One of them, South Vietnam, has dragged the United States into the most unpopular and debilitating war in American history.

In contrast, Dulles could have used the major powers of Asia as our allies—Japan, the most powerful industrial nation outside the United States; India, the second most populous nation in the world; and Indonesia, the third largest democracy in the world.

He did not, partly because they were too independent and not easily malleable to American dictation; partly because of a factor peculiar to American politics—namely, the China Lobby.

This complex of old American "China hands," American politicians greedy for campaign contributions, and the Kung-Soong dynasty dominated American policy in the Far East through the 1950's. The chief goal of the China Lobby was to set up Formosa as a bastion against the Chinese continent; and the theory of an island-small nation defense chain was concocted to justify this.

Actually the island had no military strength and the Seventh fleet was kept on constant patrol as protection. On the one occasion when Eisenhower "unleashed" Chiang Kai-shek by removing the Seventh Fleet, the fleet had to be rushed back to protect Chiang and Formosa.

Nixon and China Lobby

Early in his political career, Richard Nixon became part of this complex. Though most of the China Lobby's campaign funds which went into the Republican and Democratic campaign chests were handled by Sen. Styles Bridges, Republican of New Hampshire, and Sen. Pat McCarran, Democrat of Nevada, some China Lobby money went direct to Nixon.

When Nixon was running for the Senate against Helen Gahagan Douglas in California in 1950, Leo Casey, the GOP public relations man who was sent to help him, stated that he had seen Major Joe Kung, nephew of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, hand Nixon a wad of cash in the lobby of the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles. Major Kung remained in Southern California during much of Nixon's campaign as a friend, adviser and contributor.

Early campaign contributions when the need is great are not forgotten. And Nixon, as President, has a good memory. Quite recently he gave evidence of his long memory when the State Department recommended that the United States recognize Outer Mongolia. The recommendation was based upon the increasing friction between Red China and Russia all around Mongolia. The State Department urged that the United States have an embassy in this key part of Asia to watch carefully what was going on.

The recommendation was bolstered by one of Nixon's best friends, Secretary of State William P. Rogers. But it was negated by another old friend who had helped Nixon in time of need—namely, Chiang Kai-shek. The Generalissimo did not want any American embassy established in a region which China—whether Communist China or Nationalist—claims. And neither has relinquished its claim on Outer Mongolia.

Furthermore, he had a more recent claim on the President, dating back only two years when Nixon was in the law business and one of his clients was Pepsi-Cola. Pepsi-Cola was threatened by Coca-Cola's competition on Formosa and wanted exclusive bottling privileges. Lawyer Nixon flew to Formosa, had a session with his old friend Chiang Kai-shek and Pepsi was given exclusivity.

These things were not forgotten when the question of Mongolia came up. Richard Nixon, as President, sided with Chiang Kai-shek and against his own Secretary of State. No American embassy was established in Outer Mongolia.

Anna Chennault's Role

There was another reason to be grateful to the Nationalist Chinese, and it took place during the last week of October when Vice President Humphrey was making steady inroads against Nixon and when the Gallup and Harris polls showed that if this pace kept up, Humphrey, not Nixon, would be elected President.

One of the reasons for Humphrey's pickup was the report of peace in Vietnam. At this point Mrs. Claire Chennault, the attractive and astute Chinese widow of the Flying Tiger Chieftain, got in touch with her friends in Formosa, who in turned urged President Thieu of South Vietnam not to go to the Paris peace talks. There was a breathtaking moment when the whole peace momentum was stymied by Thieu's refusal. He waited until after the election, then accepted. By that time Richard Nixon had been elected President of the United States.

Mrs. Chennault has recently denied this key incident in history. But last fall she did not deny it; but she seemed very pleased over it.

These are events which have molded American history. They are also events which may cause President Nixon to continue the concept of island defenses, even though they have long been crumbling. On the other hand, there is some indication that Nixon is changing this policy, as will be reported in future columns.

Small Town Tensions Also Lead to Violence

By TOM TIEDE
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Recently in the nation several police cars were dispatched to investigate reports of vandalizing youths. On arrival, the cops were pelted with bricks and bottles. Then more police came. Then more trouble followed. Somebody opened up with a hidden shotgun, gangs began clogging the streets, a whole neighborhood was sealed off—and by the time it all ended more than 13 people were wounded by gun fire.

Sound familiar? It is familiar. But in this case there's a twist. This racial violence didn't take place in the urban stench of Newark, Chicago or Detroit. It happened in Indiana, Kokomo, Indiana. Population 50,000, home of the Howard County Fair, the birthplace of canned tomato juice, Kokomo. Snack dab on Wildcat Creek. Zip code 46901. Small-town America.

Surprisingly, however, there is nothing so surprising about the bloodshed in Kokomo. This seems to be the target year for such goings on in bucolic America. The socially sizzling summer has begun—but unlike recent history, it seems to be the minor, not the major, cities which are sweltering.

Item. A cop hits a man arrested for a minor offense. The cop is white, the victim black. Hundreds of tempers flare and revenge is sought. Three nights of looting and arson follow. The scene: Waterbury, Conn.

Item. A policeman draws his revolver during an arrest and shoots a young black, 18 years old, to death. Molotov cocktails, law breaking and rioting break out. A curfew is imposed. The scene: Harrisburg, Pa.

Item. A policeman stops a black motorist who ran a red light. Confusion. The cop says the black starts swinging a sickle. The black says the cop uses his gun. Rampaging results. The scene: Red Bank, N. J.

The examples go on and on. Middle-sized towns, as well as very small ones, have had unusual sufferings this spring and summer. And, ironically, their worries have come during a relative lull in major city bluster.

Hard statistics on the matter are not available. But law officers across the nation feel race miseries are shifting to the Kokomos.

The Lemberg Institute on Violence, at Boston's Brandeis University, agrees with the law officers. Researchers there say that violence in big cities has dropped off so far in 1969 — and there are considerable indications of a rise in minor city incidents.

Says an Institute officer: "We're not entirely sure about the rise in small incidents. We have counted more this year than before — but that may be due to the fact such things are news these days and therefore better recorded. It could be the small towns are not having more incidents than before. But we think they are; and, from the news reports, it certainly seems that way.

The confusion surrounding the national race violence trend, if that's what it is, is not confined to statistics. Experts admit they are also confused as to just why the small towns seem to be under increasing siege.

Some people, particularly organized black revolutionaries, feel the change is one of substituting guerrilla action for conventional warfare. A New York City Black Panther puts it this way: "Maybe things are moving out of our (black) neighborhoods and into your (white) neighborhoods. See how you like it — not knowing when or where it's gonna grab you next."

Other people, primarily big city moderates, think that an urban backlash has chased violence into the suburbs. A Cleveland police inspector, Lewis Coffey, sums up this attitude: "The people are just sick of having their streets torn apart. They're striking back. Decent people, both black and white are beginning to stand against irresponsible elements."

But the most obvious reason for the shift in racial violence, say many observers, is the sophistication of urban police forces. Urban cops are tougher, better armed and more thoroughly trained in riot control than ever before — and troublemakers may be taking to healthier (smaller) locales.

"It's pretty obvious," says Barton Fields, a black leader in racially tense Harrisburg, Pa. "A few people with 22 rifles can't compete against New York City's 35,000 policemen. But in smaller towns, like Harrisburg, where the police are less sophisticated, trouble is easier to start."

This isn't to say, adds Fields, and most other black leaders, that minorities start trouble "just for the hell of it." Chronic racial nerves have existed in small towns for as long as they have in big ones, they insist, and disturbances anywhere are mostly "a natural result of ageless frustration."

This is the lesson, blacks say, that many large towns are beginning to learn — and, in at least small ways, trying to cope with. It is a lesson, they add, the small towns had better learn, too — or continue to sweat out summers to come.

Space Guardians Presage Rosier Existence for Man

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)—A by-product of the moon program eventually will bring hope to millions of the world's farm poor and save untold suffering for the thousands each year who lose much of what they have in floods.

The potential annual savings in agriculture, shipping, fishing, forestry, flood control, mining, hydroelectric power costs and urban planning run into billions of dollars and tens of thousands of lives.

The program calls for launching a series of satellites capable of monitoring, with a variety of sensors, what is happening on the oceans, under shallow waters and on and beneath the surface of the earth.

The satellites will: Check on quick-spreading plant diseases on the farms, making possible quick action to save millions of dollars in crops each year.

Make possible early estimates of crop failures and bumper harvests in time for effective emergency-marketing plans or for the hurried planting of substitute crops.

Keep track of the depth of snow in vital areas, and be rate of melting, forecasting floods in time for emergency corrective action. Long range, the data will make possible the more efficient location and design of flood-control projects.

Provide more information needed for accurately forecasting storms on land or sea.

Map ocean characteristics that will enable commercial ocean fishermen to more accurately determine where schools of fish are running.

Make possible cheaper, safer and more pleasant travel by sea through the continual charting of areas with heavy waves.

Map shoals dangerous to navigation, point to areas potentially rich in mineral deposits, make it possible through snow depth and water runoff reporting for hydroelectric utilities to use more efficiently the water available—with savings that seem fantastic.

Monitor the spread of underground coal mine fires, thus aid in preventing the spread of dangerous gases in urban areas.

Provide relatively cheap and accurate land use maps of large areas for urban planning.

Give great amounts of precise data on air and water pollution, the necessary first step in bringing these evils under control.

TEEN SCENE: Strings the Thing in Picking Hobby

By LEI

You may have seen the ads in the pulps telling about the 98-pound weakling who sent $5 for Harry Harmony's Instant Guitar Course and by the next week the cat had muscles of steel, his own TV show, and his pick of all the chicks at the beach. If you believe that, you and Harry Harmony deserve each other.

However, as usual, there is a grain of truth, however distorted, in these ads. Many teens could do worse this summer than learning to play the guitar. (Or, for those who have already learned, they can learn to play better.) Without of course, the mail-order assistance of Harry Harmony.

Not that playing the guitar is everybody's thing. If you have a hopelessly tin ear, you don't care for music, or you are not adept with your hands, you would probably be happier mastering a sport or game. However, if you enjoy singing, already know the fundamentals of music, and are reasonably deft with your hands, by the end of vacation you may not have arms of steel, your own TV show, and a pack of screeching groupies trailing you, but you'll probably be able to play the guitar fairly well.

Choosing Rightly

If you don't play the guitar now, you probably don't own one. Perhaps surprisingly your first step shouldn't be to run out and buy an instrument to learn on. Not only should your first guitar be a good one, but it should be the right one for you, or you may find learning quite discouraging. A petite girl, for instance, would probably find that she would enjoy most a 3/4-size classic flattop with nylon strings. Her big brother, however, would find this instrument hopelessly cramped, and might enjoy an arch-top concert grand size with steel strings. The type of music you favor will also have a lot to do with the instrument you will pick, along with how much you are willing to spend before you find out if you will enjoy picking a guitar.

A reputable music store can help you select the proper first guitar for you, and they may agree to a trade-in later toward a better guitar if you decide to take more advanced studies. If you have a friend who plays the guitar (and who doesn't) they may be able to offer you first-hand advice on the type of guitar you will enjoy most, and furnish the name of a good dealer in musical supplies.

Takes Talent

Probably they can also help you master the fundamentals of playing your guitar. The guitar courses which may be for sale at the music dealers' for self-instruction are a poor substitute for a live teacher, but if you are determined and have talent, they can work. In fact, there are many well-known axe-grinders around who taught themselves to play by ear. That's the hard way, and you really have to be serious about wanting to learn, and well-endowed with talent.

Suppose you have already learned to play simple numbers on the guitar by one method or another, but you'd like to learn it better. Perhaps you are interested in becoming a professional, or maybe you just want to learn more challenging music, or a new style. You will need a good teacher. Fortunately, we live in an area abounding in talented professionals who will take students. (Naturally, just because a person is a good musician doesn't mean he is also a good teacher, but most of those who take students are talented in both directions.) The Traum Brothers, Brian Hollander, Billy Faier and many other nationally-known entertainers will instruct students. If there is a musician you have who plays the type of thing you would like to, contact him or her and ask if they give lessons. Even if they don't, they will be complimented by your interest, and probably able to send you to a fellow performer who does give lessons.

You may never perform in Carnegie Hall, but you'll find that your new skill will have fringe benefits. It will put you in contact with new friends with whom you will really be in harmony. It will improve your dexterity and strengthen your hands. It will add a new dimension to your other interests, and will be a hobby that will mature with you, and provide pleasure throughout your adulthood.

Who knows—if it's what you really want, you might even become rich and famous with your own TV show. It has happened. . . .

Wonderful Is Word for AFS Study

By JEAN F. DOLAN

BOICEVILLE

Christina Gardner of Boiceville, just returned from a year of study in Germany as American Field Service representative, described life abroad thusly.

While in Germany, she lived with the Friedrich Kulenkampf family and was a student in the Lesum School in the Bremen suburb.

Completing her final year of high school while in Germany, Chris found the curriculum and schedule a little different than home but "not that difficult to adjust to" even though language was an occasional barrier. Courses included German, Spanish, history, civics, music, English and gym. English credits were honored for Ontario graduation. The other required course was American History which she took by correspondence.

She had no trouble making friends while in Europe and after school hours were filled with a full round of parties.

ish, history, civics, music, English and gym. English credits were honored for Ontario graduation. The other required course was American History which she took by correspondence.

She had no trouble making friends while in Europe and after school hours were filled with a full round of parties.

class trips and theater entertainment. Chris sang with a community chorus of young people also.

A Christmas trip to the Italian Alps resulted in "really learning how to ski." Nothing like starting out with the big mountains first. Chris noted, Belleaire, just a ways up Route 28 from her home will seem tame by comparison no doubt. She also spent three weeks in Spain, just wandering around and taking in the sights.

Other trips included four days in Vienna with her German family and a bus tour of Germany with other American Field Service students at the conclusion of their stay in that country.

Chris became interested in the AFS program of student exchange through personal contact with foreign classmates at Onteora which actively participates in the plan. The Gardners also hosted several American Field Service travelers who had a three-day stopover in the area.

Fired by her experiences in foreign study, Chris hopes to return to Europe for her college junior year of study if at all possible. She will enter Boston University as a freshman this fall. Her major comes as no surprise. She plans to study German and Spanish languages. Always interested in languages she took three years of German before her trip and had two weeks of intensive language training prior to her Bremen year.

Summing up the "marvelous experience," Chris said she would highly recommend the exchange to anyone.

And to Chris we can only say, "Gross Gott."

'Mooving' Concert Set for Spa Debut

COWSILLS READY FOR SARATOGA

SARATOGA The Cowsills, the dynamic singing group of four brothers and their mini-mommy, make their Saratoga debut on the special events series being presented by the Performing Arts Center, Tuesday evening, 8:30 p.m. in the Amphitheater. They appear on the same program with The Checkmates, Ltd., who are also being introduced to local audiences.

Within the past few months, the Cowsills have shot to the top ranks among recording artists having their first album, "Cowsills in Concert" hitting number one in sales among the industries top 100 in mid-June and two single recordings, "Hair," and "The Prophecy of being the Cowsills themselves. They are a prepared music and entertainment industry in itself.

The Cowsills corporation reads as follows: A Bill, Bob, Barry and John Cowsill—comprising the nucleus of the group; their mother, Barbara Cowsill, who joins the boys' harmony; road managers, Dick and Paul; the Cowsills baby, Susan, and Mr. Cowsill, like any father would be, stuck with the job of coordinating the conglomeration.

Tickets for the concert by The Cowsills and the Checkmates, Ltd., Tuesday, are available at the S.P.A.C. Box Office and at all Ticketron Outlets in the Capital District as well as the East. This is a Cowsill. Ironically, while the Cowsills were not fabricated by the music industry, the industry itself and the whole country for that matter, play a major role in their coming to be. The music industry was ready and in fact, waiting for the Cowsills. The same applied to the Beatles, five years ago. This "thing" can be compared to a chemical reaction which requires certain ingredients—those ingredients being the Cowsills themselves. They are a prepared music and entertainment industry in itself. ## Dialogue Used to Bridge Communication Gap

United Press International Student: "I smoke marijuana." Teacher: "Why?" Student: "It makes me feel good." Teacher: "Do your parents know you smoke marijuana?" Student: "No, But I know how they feel. When the subject comes up—like in a newspaper article or something—they start yelling." Teacher: "Do your parents drink?" Student: "They get stoned." The dialogue above is role played. The student was played by Dr. Gary Edwards, chairman of the Department of Health Education at Adelphi University. Acting alternatively as teacher was a group of school superintendents attending a workshop at Teachers College, Columbia University.

Edwards, as the student, opened a seminar session with the assertion that he smoked marijuana. He asked the superintendents to respond and engage him in dialogue as they would wish their teachers to respond if the situation arose in their classroom.

Edwards said the typical reaction of a teacher, so confronted, is: Oh, what do I do now? Long silences indicated the superintendents, too, were less than fully prepared to cope with it.

The student, as Edwards played him, displayed confusion about adults' headline dogmas on the use of marijuana. What about the businessman who has four martinis with his lunch? Or the housewife who habitually pops in pills to help her sleep or relieve tension?

The difference is, one superintendent responded, that marijuana is against the law. That didn't seem to help the student resolve the apparent ambiguity.

Rather quickly, the dialogue faltered with neither the "student" nor the "teachers," as played by the superintendents, grasping or accepting the point of view of the other.

Communication and mutual trust, it was emphasized, seem to embody the greatest hope for closing the idea gap on drugs between parents and teachers and the teen generation. The rising tide of marijuana use, incidentally, was described by a psychiatrist as a contagion of an idea, not a spreading physiological addiction.

A pretty brunette named Marge, a former Radcliffe coed who once was addicted to drugs, told the superintendents: "You don't have to tell kids that drugs can ruin their lives. They already know that. You have to help kids overcome the problems that cause them to turn to drugs."

Local Freshmen, Transfers Take Part in Albany Meet

KINGSTON A number of Kingston area students attended the mid-July session of the 1969 Summer Planning Conference of the State University of New York at Albany last week.

The conference, initiated in 1964, involves seven three-day sessions for freshmen and four two-day orientation periods for transfer students through Aug. 16.

Transfer students in attendance from this area were Marie N. Beckert, Route 6, Box 399, Kingston; Bruce Donnelly, RD 1, Box 274, Stone Ridge; Derrick Froelich of Route 6, Box 46 M. Kingston; William Malloy, P.O. Box 2, Mt. Tremper.

Freshmen at the three-day sessions were Patricia Dowling, 10 DeWitt Avenue, Ellenville; Roslein Fitzgerald, Sycamore Street, Kingston and Deborah Suttly of RD 1, Box 275, West Hurley.

Dr. Sorrell E. Chesin, associate dean of students, said that the conference is being expanded this year to include a full orientation program for an estimated 1,800 freshmen and 600 transfer students. Edward Bazinet, residence hall director, is serving as coordinator for the conference.

The program involves faculty, administration and students. Staff members are responsible for a variety of activities including academic advisement, counseling and discussion sessions, registration, and other official functions. Much of the program is administered and conducted by university students who are selected as conference assistants.

Approximately 250 freshmen will attend each of the seven conference sessions and 125 transfer students will attend Campus tours also are provided.

There is a special program for parents and guests of students, which includes an opportunity to meet with principal university officials. Dr. Clifton C. Thorne, vice president for student affairs, and Dr. Robert Morris, dean of the University College, officially welcome participants at the opening convocation.

Plays, Bonjoy Debut on Hobbit Agenda

BONNIE LEE PETERSON

KINGSTON Bonnie Lee Peterson or "Bonjoy," as she is often billed, has already made a name for herself as a performer in the New Paltz area where she resides. The young folksinger, 12-string guitar player, and songwriter has appeared widely by herself and as a member of several groups in New Paltz, High Falls, Potsdam and Cazenovia. She is making her Kingston debut this weekend at the Hobbit Coffeehouse.

Up until recently, the Kingston area has provided few opportunities for even the most talented protest singers. When the Hobbit Coffeehouse instituted its Saturday evening auditions, Bonjoy was one of the first singers to avail herself of the opportunity. Her professional, businesslike delivery, talented voice, and selection of original songs promptly earned her this first booking in Kingston.

While Bonnie Lee has performed with the Catastrophes, a New Paltz group, and as a member of several duets, she is at her most outstanding as a soloist, and this is how she has chosen to appear at the Hobbit. A serious musician, Bonjoy is a student of musical composition at the Crane School of Music in Potsdam, and is also studying orchestration at SUNY in New Paltz. Noted for her songwriting, she is the author of a book of verse and song now in publication.

The Hobbit Coffeehouse, presently located in the basement of the Fair Street Reformed Church, is hoping that other talented singers and groups in the Hudson Valley area will come forward for the Saturday evening auditions, held between 6 and 7:30 every week. The Coffeehouse is always searching for fresh talent to present to its patrons.

Another of the Hobbit features which is utilizing local talent is the Wednesday evening impromptu theater. Started this week under the direction of Brian Hollander, guest manager, folk singer and actor, the improvisational drama is expected to become a Wednesday night regular.

Area teens interested in taking part in the play-it-by-ear play acting should be on hand by 7:30 this coming Wednesday.

Susie Berning Takes Lead In LPGA

KIAMESHA LAKE, N.Y. (UPI)—Susie Maxwell Berning, 36, took the lead in the Ladies Professional Golfers' Association (LPGA) 72-hole tournament on Friday. Berning, who shot a 69 on the first day, had a one-shot lead over 18-year-old Betsy Rawls of Spartanburg, S.C.

"After I three-putted the 9th for a 37 (lover par) I took off my glove. All of a sudden I putted better," Mrs. Berning said. She had a two-under 35 on the treacherous back nine where Carol Mann, the first round co-leader with Mrs. Berning, skied to a two-over par 39 and a 144 total.

Mariene Hagge and the leading money winner on the tour, Kathy Whitworth, were in at even par 146.

Mrs. Berning of Lake Tahoe, Nev., has already won two tournaments on the summer tour. She doesn't play in the spring and winter.

She was one of four to break par in the second round of the event worth a record $36,000. Also in with 72 were last year's LPGA champ Sandra Post, Miss Rawls and Mrs. Hagge.

The field was cut from the record of 63 to 41 for the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday. The cutoff figure was 162.

Saratoga Opens Season Monday

SARATOGA—The Capital of Thoroughbred Racing, opens its 24-day season on Monday. A glittering stakes schedule, highlighted by the 100th running of the $100,000 added Travers, has been announced by the New York Racing Association with the emphasis once again on two-year-olds.

Seven of the 19 stakes races at the meeting are for juveniles and the stakes presentation on opening day is the 94th running of the $25,000 added Flash, six furlongs for two-year-olds. Climaxing the meeting on closing day, August 23, is the 65th running of the $75,000 added Hopeful, six and a half furlongs for two-year-olds.

Pride Runs Today

MONTICELLO for all pace for a purse of $5300.

The great one, Nevele Pride, if not the greatest trotter of all time, then certainly the greatest trotter of this era, will be making a return visit to Monticello Raceway today, as Grand Circuit action returns for another year.

Owned by the Nevele Acres and Louis Resnick of Ellenville, N.Y., Nevele Pride will be taking part in the Excelsior Stakes for a 4-year-old trotters.

Trainer-driver Stanley Dancer has made no bones about it. If the track conditions are right, as they are expected to be, and if the weather is favorable, as it is hoped to be, then Nevele Pride will be after Speedy Rodney's world record of 1:58.4 set winning the Titan Trot at Historic Track in Goshen in 1966.

A 2:00 trotting mile on a half mile track is rare, indeed, and only a handful of very select trotters have even been able to accomplish that feat. Nevele Pride, a frequent sub 2:00 trotter, will be going after the world's record in the non-betting fourth race on the afternoon segment of the day-night doubleheader.

Opposing the "King of the Hill," a winner of $701,494 lifetime, are the pair of Kerry Pride and Dart Hanover.

On his way to the $1 million mark in earnings Nevele Pride will be making what is probably his final Monticello appearance.

Facing Nevele Pride in the $11,365 Founders' Cup as the Dancer trotter goes after his fifth win of the year, will be Kerry Pride driven by trainer Eddie Wheeler for the Almet Stable of Pasadena, Calif., and the Sanders Russell trained and driven Dart Hanover who is too owned by Russell and Charlotte Sheppard of Hanover, Pa.

Post time for the matinee portion of the twin bill is 2:30 p.m.

Featuring the evening portion of the Mighty M's second doubleheader of the season is a free

THE KINGSTON DAILY FREEMAN

While the juveniles hold much of the spotlight at Saratoga, the three-year-olds and older horses are not overlooked. Saratoga offers a balanced stakes program and the first Saturday, August 2, is marked by the 42nd running of the $50,000 added Whitney, for four-year-olds and upwards. In between the Flash and the Whitney during the first week are the $25,000 added Schuylerville, for two-year-old fillies, on Wednesday, and the $25,000 added Test, for three-year-old fillies, on Thursday.

The Whitney has been won in recent years by such noted horses as Dr. Fager, Kelso, Gun Bow and Carry Back. Going back among its winners were Discovery (three years in a row), War Admiral, Eight Thirty, Devil Diver, Stymie, Tom Fool and the great mare Gallopette.

This year the early choice for the mile and a furlong race is the Verna Lea Farm's No. 1, who last week won the Brooklyn Handicap at Aqueduct. Nodouble is already on the grounds at Saratoga, awaiting the Whitney. This four-year-old has run in seven $100,000 races in a row. He's won the Santa Anita Handicap, the Californian and the Brooklyn. He finished first in the Strub but was disqualified and dropped to second. He also was second in the Gulfstream Park Handicap, the Metropolitan and the Hollywood Gold Cup.

One who is expected to challenge Nodouble is Elmdorfer Verbatim, who ran second in the Brooklyn after dueling all the mile and a quarter with Nodouble. Verbatim the week before had won the Haskell Handicap.

The Travers this year reaches a milestone — the 100th running. First run in 1864, the year racing first was conducted on the site of the present Saratoga track, the Travers is the oldest in span of years of any stakes race in the United States. The race was named for William R. Travers, first president of the Saratoga track.

While the Travers is the high point of the meeting for three-year-olds and the Hopeful for two-year-olds, the track is $50,000 added Alabama, on the second Saturday of the meeting.

Dear Abby

Poem Gave Her Peace

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

(© 1969 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Occasionally this world is blessed with people who possess a special quality of quietness and serenity which touches the lives of those they know.

My sister, Betty Durden Jones, was such a person. At the age of 40 she faced death as patiently and peacefully as she faced life, having in her heart the peace of God which passes understanding.

In thumbing thru her Bible, after her death, I came across a clipping of your column, printed in 1962 in the Marietta (Ga.) Journal. In it was a poem by Orin L. Crain which you thought so beautiful you reprinted.

I am not in possession of her personal effects since I am merely her sister, but would appreciate so very much your reprinting it so that I may have a copy.

Gratefully,
MRS. HUGH HOLLEMAN
DEAR MRS. HOLLEMAN: It is with much pleasure I comply with your request.

"Slow me down, Lord!
Ease the pounding of my heart
By the quieting of my mind.
Steady my hurried pace
With a vision of the eternal reach of time.
Give me,

Amidst the confusion of my day,
The calmness of the everlasting hills.
Break the tensions of my nerves
With the soothing music of the singing streams
That live in my memory.
Help me to know
The magical restoring power of sleep.
Teach me the art
Of taking minute vacations of slowing down to look at a flower.
to chat with an old friend or make a new one;
to pat a stray dog;
to watch a spider rebuild a web;
to smile at a child;
or to read a few lines from a good book.
Remind me each day
That the race is not always to the swift;
That there is more to life than increasing its speed.
Let me look upward
Into the branches of the towering oak
And know that it grew great and strong
Because it grew slowly and well.
Slow me down, Lord,
And inspire me to send my roots deep
Into the soil of life's enduring values
That I may grow toward the stars
Of my greater destiny."

I've tried that, and she said, "Call me back."

NEEDS HELP
DEAR NEEDS: If she is a "very good friend," you should be able to level with her. Say, "Look, Cookie, I have a lot to do, and must get going. If I have time, I'll call you later, but don't call me. Bye."

CONFIDENTIAL TO
"COLLECTOR OF PROVERBS": For every proverb preaching one philosophy you will find another which preaches the contrary. Example: "The squeaking wheel gets the grease." And "the quacking duck gets shot."

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

FORECAST FOR MONDAY JULY 28, 1969

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Pace yourself. Don't try too much at once. Cement relations with neighbors, associates, co-workers. Keep resolutions concerning work, health, recreation. Key is balance.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You find that full moon tonight coincides with romantic inclinations, which is fine. But remember commitments. Don't risk something for nothing. Moderation should be your byword.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Give attention to home, adjustments, improvements. Pay heed to advice of older individual. No time to shake off suggestions. Be receptive.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You may be taking a short trip which appears to be connected with family business. Be diplomatic. Strive for harmony. Your ability to converse on various subjects is a definite asset.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be practical in financial matters. Don't be too willing to spend. Take time to evaluate possibilities. Genuine needs can be fulfilled. But you must be perceptive.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You can make contacts, take initiative. Highlight independence of thought, action. Investments pay off; you realize profit from past efforts. Cycle is high.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Best to finish, to remain in background. Remember those confined to home, hospital. Keep resolutions concerning charitable projects. Be patient and considerate. Works to your ultimate benefit.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are due to make significant changes which could include residence. You are interested in drama, music and medicine. Obviously, your concerns are far-ranging. Self-expression, including writing, is necessary for your emotional welfare.

Children are reluctant to eat spinach even when told it has vitamin C, calcium and the most iron and vitamin A of all popular vegetables. The World Almanac notes. Kids' war on spinach and the straggle parents have used to get them to eat it are portrayed in Carl Rose's famous 1928 New Yorker cartoon, where mother and child exchange this dialogue: "It's broccoli, dear." "I say it's spinach, I say the hell with it."

Tom Jones Hottest New Star

NEW YORK (AP) — A few years ago in Pontypridd, Wales, a young singer named Tom Jones was rather leisurely about pushing for the big time. "I waited four or five years to make a move. You know, when you're young you think you've got plenty of time."

Tom Jones is moving now. He's the hottest new star of the year. His television show on ABC is tied for No. 16 in the latest ratings and in personal appearances in this country he's breaking records. His income this year will exceed $2.4 million. "It's happening here for me like it happened a few years ago in England," Jones said. "Only it's better because it's a bigger country."

At the Copacabana, women who looked like they might have swooned over Frank Sinatra in his youth climbed on tables and threatened to crush him. The same thing happened at the Flamingo in Las Vegas and this week he's at Framingham, Mass.

He will tape at least six shows for the new season in Hollywood beginning Aug. 26, then return to England.

"I always had it in the back of my mind that I would make it as a singer," Jones recalled. "I never bought a house. I never got seriously interested in a job. I lived in South Wales for most of my life. It's so far away from any recording studios that you have to get out to do anything. I was 23 before I went to London. I was waiting for someone to discover me," he said.

In fact, he was discovered belting out songs in a working-man's club by Gordon Mills, who is still managing his career. Mills booked him into more clubs and in 1965 he wrote a song called "It's Not Unusual." Jones recorded it and the rest, as they say, is show business history.

Tom Jones is hard to pin down as a singer. He has a booming voice, but there's a hoarseness to it that adds some appealing quality. He sings rhythm and blues and rock and ballads. His style is influenced by Muddy Waters, Big Bill Brumley, Jerry Lee Lewis and, of course, Elvis Presley.

He gyrates about as Presley does, more so on the stage than on television. "On the first Ed Sullivan show I did they told me to cool it. Not so many bumps and grinds," he said.

Three years ago in Australia, the police accused him of obscenity and took motion pictures of his act. "They couldn't find anything bad," Jones said. "I get carried away when I sing," Jones said. "The words come out automatically. You get carried away with the audience. You go along with them."

Bridge

Triple Squeeze Brings in Slam

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Some years ago Lee Hazen of New York, who is a lawyer first and a bridge expert second, was awakened at three in the morning by an important client calling from California. It seems that the client had been on lead against a seven-spade contract with 10 solid hearts, the ace-king of diamonds and a small club. He asked Hazen what he would lead and the reply was, "The ace of hearts."

"Why?" asked the client. "Because you wouldn't have called me at this hour if your ace of diamonds hadn't been ruffed."

If we were to call Lee about today's hand, he would lead a club and he would be right. A club lead beats the seven-heart contract. However, if Lee were sitting at the table, he would open the jack of diamonds just as West did. The lead is normal indeed, although unfortunate.

With an opening lead but a club, declarer develops a three-suit squeeze automatically. He wins the diamond in his hand, plays out several rounds of trumps and then tries to see if the diamonds will break at all reasonably. He only needs a 4-2 break but they break 5-1 and he is one trick short of his contract in straight winners. This doesn't bother him in the slightest. He simply cashes his ace and king of spades and runs off the rest of his trumps.

He will have discarded one spade on the third diamond, so that his own last two cards will be a low diamond and the ace-king of clubs.

West will have to discard down to one club and to hold a high diamond, whereupon the last diamond will be thrown from dummy and East will be squeezed out of his club.

In fact, he was discovered belting out songs in a working-man's club by Gordon Mills, who is still managing his career. Mills booked him into more clubs and in 1965 he wrote a song called "It's Not Unusual." Jones recorded it and the rest, as they say, is show business history.

An Ulster County Beauty Spot — The Spillway at Ashokan Reservoir

Full Week's TV Listing From July 27 Thru Aug. 2

WITH THE NATION PLUNGED DEEP IN WAR in the 1940's, Woodstock's art colony took on a far more somber mood than it had exhibited in the '20s when the life of an artist had been simple and hard, but often filled with colorful parties, festivals and fairs. Gone were the Maverick Festivals and the beneficent Federal Arts Projects which had seen needy artists through the severe depression years of the '30's. And gone, too, as the men marched off to war and the women and children manned airplane spotter stations, was the magical Market Fair. The weekly Saturday morning fair, called "as gay and bright hued as the opening of 'Liliom,'" by a New York City journalist during its heyday, was portrayed in all its uniqueness in this drawing which appeared in the New York Times Magazine in August of 1929.

A Surging Influx After Bleak Years

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

"Surely the change that met the eyes of Rip when he awoke was no greater than the new phases of activity that are making Woodstock a place of pilgrimage in the art world . . ."

So wrote an art critic of the 1920's when Woodstock, in its sheltered Catskill valley, was so far off the beaten path it had to dig in deeply with elbow power aplenty to establish the potent reputation it desired.

But the '20s proved colorful and productive; saw the art colony beginning to make a splash; big city critics arriving with tongue-in-cheek and leaving enchanted by the Saturday morning Market Fair on the village green, and impressed by the first rate exhibitions of fine art.

Burning Bright

Genius burned brightly in

Woodstock in those years—and in the '30s when the markedly independent and unstandardized artists of the town won for themselves reputations, prizes and honors.

The Woodstock Artists Association proved this conclusively with its recent exhibit of works by painters and sculptors who lived and worked in their mountain retreats during the years between 1920 and 1940. That show, the first in a series of three exhibits celebrating the Artists Association's 50th year, has just closed.

Now the WAA Gallery, which has endured the Roaring Twenties and the '30s with their depression deprivation and sacrifice, is offering its second show of this celebrative season. If the first exhibit spoke eloquently of such artists as Andrew Dasburg, John Carlson, Henry McFee, Frank Chase and Eric Lindin, who formed the Woodstock Realty Company and commissioned architect Griffin Herrick to build the WAA gallery, this show revives memories of such brilliant names as Avery, Burlin, Jones, London, Millman, Presser, Magafan, Tomlin and Walters.

If the first show brought back the enchantment of Woodstock's untamed hillsides and colorful costumes, crafts and wares, this show — highlighting artists of 1940-60, brings back some of the bleakness of the war years. If the first show spoke of high spirits and low funds during a depression when the government helped near-pauper artists via WPA and other projects, this second exhibit moves through the war and into the renaissance which followed.

Living Meant Beans

In the '20s local artists had fought for what they called their

"inalienable right" to bathe in their own streams in defiance of laws forbidding them to do so and had risen up against the Ku Klux Klan by issuing an appeal to "all true Americans to make a stand against all secret organizations." In the '30s they had existed mainly on beans, much as today's commune artists live on brown rice. But, in the '40s, with the nation deep in war, they faced adjustments, bleak and dubious years, gallery openings that were based on rationing, and a desire to help war neer; with contributions and war posters.

With the war's end came a surging influx of new painters, almost all of whom still live and work in Woodstock today. The somberness of the early '40s was gone; replaced with head whirling activity in the

ARTISTS OF THE 1940's partied, too, but — as this 1946 photo shows — somewhat more sedately (at least on this one occasion). Enjoying their cake and eating it, too, left to right, are: Jennie Magafan and husband Ed Chavez with Julio de Diego. The very talented Miss Magafan passed away short years later. Chavez, who has since remarried, and de Diego, who is now bearded, still live and work in Woodstock. (Photo by Adrian Siegel).

Vacationing? Try the Finger Lakes

17—THE KINGSTON DAILY FREEMAN, JULY 26, 1969

FINGER LAKES WINE DISTRICT — Scenic vineyard covered hillside overlooks Lake Keuka in America's champagne district. Five wineries — 4 in Hammondsport and 1 in Naples — offer interesting educational year round free tours.

FRENCH FORT — Fort "Ste Marie de Gannentha," built by Jesuit Priests who worked among the Indians and located near Syracuse on the eastern shore of Onondaga Lake. It's open daily and admission is free.

The Finger Lakes Region of upstate New York is a 14 county area that lies between Rochester and Syracuse and extends south from the shores of Lake Ontario to the Pennsylvania border. It encompasses approximately 9,000 square miles and includes 650 miles of shoreline.

Visited annually by more than 4½ million tourists, the region is ideal for family travel; is one of the most scenic in the world. Because of its location between Niagara Falls and New York City, it is also an economical region in which to vacation.

The area has been aptly named for its outstanding feature which is the Lakes themselves. There are 11 in all, including Conesus, Hemlock, Canadice, Honeyoe, Canandaigua, Keuka, Seneca, Cayuga, Owasco, Skaneateles and Otisco. The names of the lakes reflect the Indian lore of the area with the two largest, Seneca and Cayuga, named after two of the six major nations. These two lakes are connected by the Seneca-Cayuga Canal and provide access by boat to the Erie Canal and from there to the waterways of the world. Other important water resources include the Barge Canal; Lake Ontario, on the shores of which are three state parks; plus several smaller lakes.

The Indian Legend

Legend has it the lakes were formed by the Great Spirit when in extending His hands to touch the earth, He showed His preference for this area as being a chosen spot. Geologists trace the origin of the finger shaped lakes to the ice age which dates back a million years, but whichever story you prefer it is a fact today that not only the lakes but the people of the region extend their hands in a gesture of hospitality to the hundreds of thousands who visit each year.

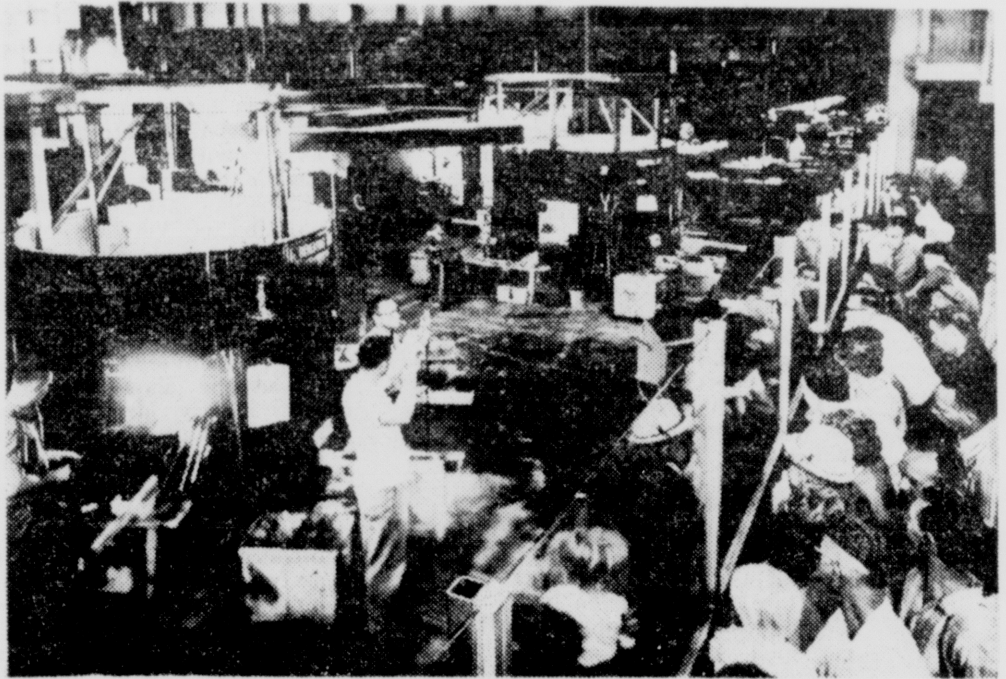

The region has a lot to offer—not only in terms of natural wonders and scenic beauty, but because of its historical significance along with its recreational and cultural endowments. Originally a summer vacationland this is the area's busiest time and there is truly something for everyone this time of year. The scenic beauty is unparalleled and there are numerous outstanding points such as the sprawling colorful valley from the Jumpoff in the Ontario County Park; Harris Hill where visitors can view spectacular Chemung Valley and at the same time catch a glider ride; the old lake road in northern Wayne County which winds through the orchards within sight of Lake Ontario; the refreshing lake scene from Route 41 overlooking southern Skaneateles Lake; or Bully Hill and the vineyard covered hillside overlooking Keuka, "the crooked lake."

The region's rich historical tradition includes dozens of important homes, museums and other points of interest such as the Seward Mansion in Auburn, home of William Seward, Secretary of State under Presidents Lincoln and Johnson and best known for his purchase of Alaska, "Seward's Folly"; the Glenn Curtis Museum in Hammondsport where replicas of early vintage airplanes tell the story of Glenn H. Curtiss, the Father of Naval Aviation; the George Eastman House of Photography in Rochester, home of the founder of Eastman Kodak Co.; the Mark Twain Study on the campus of Elmira College where Samuel Clemens did much of his writing; Granger Homestead in Canandaigua formerly occupied by Gideon Granger, the Postmaster General for Thomas Jefferson along with the Memorial Day Museum in Waterloo which has been recognized nationally as the birthplace of this patriotic observance. Other important persons tracing their heritage to the Finger Lakes Region—Chief Logan, the famous Indian orator; Millard Fillmore, the 13th President of the United States; Joseph Smith, founder of the Mormon Church; General Sullivan; Marcus Whitman, and crusading suffragettes Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Amelia Jenks Bloomer.

CORNING GLASS CENTER at Corning is the top attraction in the Finger Lakes region; is visited annually by over three quarters of a million visitors. This is the popular spectator gallery overlooking the Steuben factory.

THE SPORT OF KINGS is popular at this Finger Lakes race track at Farmington near Canandaigua. A modern thoroughbred racing center, its season extends from May into October.

AQUA FESTIVAL — Seneca Falls spectacular, staged on the Seneca-Cayuga Canal, is one of the top water-oriented special events held annually in the Finger Lakes area.

THE FACE OF WOODSTOCK'S village center has changed drastically over the years, since this photo was taken in the 1920's. The strips of lawn on the left have given way to cement and the facades of the buildings have been modernized or rebuilt. The tree on the right is no more, but the village green from which it sprouts remains today in modified form. So does the Woodstock Artists Association (the white building at center right) but — in the interval — shrubbery has grown up around it and fame has come to those who exhibited and are still exhibiting there. Now celebrating its 50th anniversary year, the WAA gallery is the scene of an excellent show of works by Woodstock artists from 1940-1960. (Photo by Stowall Studios).

A Surging Influx After Bleak

form of concerts, film festivals, forums, art exhibits and even a series of National Art Conferences.

And, true to form, Woodstock's strongly individualistic artists were still protesting. Not about swimming in the creek or cross burnings by the Klan, but about President Harry Truman's inclination to put his foot in his mouth on cultural subjects. In the summer of 1947, hundreds of Woodstock artists signed a letter of protest and sent it off to Truman, condemning him for his condemnation of modern artists as "half-baked lazy people..." Woodstockers also denounced the President for his statement: "There is no art at all in connection with the modernists, in my opinion."

The current show at the WAA Gallery speaks eloquently of the changing economics of Woodstock, just as the first exhibit spoke of its pioneering spirit. It tells us that log cabin and barn studios were rapidly replaced by exurbia. It reminds us that the art conferences of the late '40s and early '50s were nationally famous; boasted such speakers as Harold Clurman, Yasuo Kuniyoshi, David Smith, Heywood Hale Broun, Ben Shahn, Jack Levine and others.

Return of Gaiety

Forgotten were the sugar rationing, black market silk stockings and bandage rolling for the Red Cross of the early '40s, as the late '40s brought back costume balls and gala, four-day long festivals.

In the '50s and '60s, Woodstock's galleries continued to flourish, goading beneath the influx of pictures, sculpture, weavings, wicker baskets and other artifacts. And, with the streams reopened for swimming, the Klan no longer a national threat, and Truman out of the White House, artists turned to settling in Woodstock and to fighting for planning and zoning in their picturesque community.

If Rip would have blinked at the changes of the '20s, he would awake today to realize that it would not be quite correct to endow Woodstock with a salient Van Winkle flavor. But he would find something of the haunting dream still left. If Woodstock's flavor is art rather than legend, it is art well worth honoring in this 50th year of WAA.

To visit the current WAA exhibit (now through July 30) is to realize that if all art 1941 did not swerve suddenly to World War II subjects, the artists' observations of life had quickened. Prior to the war, canvases out of Woodstock dealt mostly with the pastoral landscape and with realistic portraits and sculptures. This exhibit is often more somber but also more experimental. A portrait of "Doris" by the late Milton Avery (lent by Doris Lee) is not so concerned with the exact duplication of features as it is with style and whimsey. Ainslie Burke's oil of the Sicilian Seacoast and Pat Collins' painting of VJ Day make the landscape something muted and lacey, in the first instance, and something crowded and clamoring in the second.

Changing Styles

And the show brings home with clarity how the style of an individual artist changes as he matures and progresses. Almost startling by contrast are the bold lines and bright colors used by Reginald Wilson in his modern art paintings of today as compared with the farm and hunting scene of pastoral tranquility he has on exhibit in this show of his earlier work. The same could be said of Walter Plate's "Yoicks," a vivid, splashy painting of a fox hunt in all its rambunctious swirl of action and color, as compared with his larger, more abstract style of today.

Among other visual attractions in the current show:

A William Pachner collage called "Diary of a Hero," capturing the sadness of the past; a mammoth, magnificent oil by the late Josef Presser titled "Carnival of Binche;" an eloquent oil of a gauntly impoverished woman by Anton Refregier, called "Regrets" and showing this artist's early concern with social consciousness, a concern that continues today; and the intriguing "Ad Astra" oil by Judson Smith whose use of symbols of the time bears a striking resemblance to today's moon landing Eagle.

There is much to commend this show which continues the 50th year celebration of WAA. If the first exhibit in the series of three invoked nostalgia for a more leisurely past, this show — which takes up where the first left off — tells us that wars and rumors of war are followed by a surging influx of activity and advancement that make for progress in the arts and in life itself.

Storm King Exhibiting Light Images by Childs

Works by Bernhard Childs, noted American artist and printmaker, are featured in the second summer exhibition at Storm King Art Center, Cornwall, now through Oct. 31.

Childs' reputation as one of the greatest 20th century printmakers is well established in this country, where he has been a permanent resident since 1966. In the 16 previous years, he lived and worked in Paris, France, and the Orient where he gained recognition for his remarkable paintings and portraits. The last retrospective of the full range of his work was held by Amsterdam's Stedelijk Museum, Holland, in 1959.

Born in Brooklyn in 1910 and raised in Harrisburg, Pa., Bernhard Childs came late to the realization of his gifts and abilities as a highly sensitive artist. He left the University of Pennsylvania in 1930 to study with Kimon Nicolaides in New York. At that time he encountered the great silversmith, Per Smed, from whom he learned the love and understanding of metals which is evident in his printmaking.

Career Delayed by War

Childs was delayed in his chosen career by the Depression and naval duty in the Second World War. He was on a destroyer escort which was hit by a Japanese kamakaze aircraft and wounded so badly that it required years of hospitalization and convalescence. He then studied in Italy and finally settled in Paris where except for two years working and traveling in the Orient, he remained until his return to New York in 1966.

Mounted by Storm King's new curator, Saugertiesian Una E. Johnson, who was formerly Curator of Prints and Drawings at Brooklyn Museum, the Childs' exhibit of paintings, prints and light images shows the natural development of his concern with pure light and man's ancient instinct for making poetry visible outside himself. His images in light are being shown for the first time at the Storm King Art Center.

Childs' work is in the collections of the Whitney Museum, Brooklyn Museum, Boston Museum of Fine Arts, Fogg Art Museum, and the National Collection of Fine Arts of the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, among others.

Storm King Art Center is open to the public daily from 2 to 5:30 p.m. with the exception of Monday. It is located on Old Pleasant Hill Road, Cornwall, near Orr's Mills.

A Musical Tom Jones

A new musical based on "Tom Jones" will conclude the Berkshire Theatre Festival season at nearby Stockbridge, Mass. "Tom Jones" will run for three weeks at the Festival, from Wednesday, Aug. 13 through Saturday, Aug. 30. Tickets are available now.

Based on the novel by Henry Fielding from which the well-known movie was taken, "Tom Jones" was authored by Ruth Batchelor and Bob Roberts. In residence at the Festival to conceive the production are Aileen Passloff, Wally Harper, Paul Zakrzewski and Clint Spencer. "At worst," said Harper, "the audience will have a great time."

Miss Passloff, a dancer and choreographer, will make her directing debut with "Tom Jones." "But I'm sure the functions will overlap," she said. "We're working as a team." Miss Passloff has to her credit choreography for many productions at the famed Judson Poets' Theatre in New York where the current off-Broadway hits "Peace" and "Promenade" originated. Among her Judson credits are choreography of "Pomegranada" and "The Song of Songs," both with music by Al Carmines.

Harper will do new musical arrangements for "Tom Jones" to suit his and Miss Passloff's lively unconventional production concept. "We don't want it to look like a musical," Miss Pass-loff said. Harper, an arranger-composer-conductor, wrote music for "Whispers on the Wind" produced this spring at Lincoln Center and scheduled for Off-Broadway in the fall.

Currently at the Berkshire Theatre is Eugene Ionesco's "Hunger and Thirst" to be followed by "Timon's Beach" on July 30.

It Was No Mistake

HELSINKI, Finland (UPI)—Government officials returning home from the Stockholm meeting of the Nordic Council thought they had overshot the mark. The airport was marked "Moscow."

They were on target, however. The signs were part of a film, "The Kremlin Letter," being shot here.

A special section entitled "Man's Future in the Space Age" including two exhibits by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) will be set up in the Center of Living at the 1969 New York State Fair, Aug. 26 to Sept. 1 in Syracuse.

The section will highlight the Fair's new theme, the future, and provide industrial and scientific exhibitors an excellent setting.

Highlight of the futuristic exposition will be NASA's walk-in circular theater-like structure. Thirteen feet high and 18 feet in diameter, it houses a continuous multi-media presentation on the communication and meteorological satellites, moon photographs, an X-15 flight and astronauts on actual missions.

The second NASA exhibit will take spectators to the world's largest building in volume, the Vehicle Assembly Building at Kennedy Space Center, Cape Kennedy, Fla.

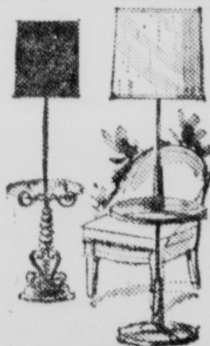

The display features a unique automated model, about five and one-half feet tall, and also depicts activities concerning spacecraft development and mission control at the Manned Spacecraft Center, Houston; launch vehicle development, Marshall Space Flight Center, Huntsville, Ala.; launch facilities at Kennedy Space Center and the Apollo mission to the moon.

Introducing two great new economy cars: the 1969 Renault-16 Sedan-Wagon.

sedan you could buy for its looks alone. That becomes a rugged station wagon with a flick of the seats. It's already a three year old success in Europe and Canada.

Maybe because of its front wheel drive system, for safety in turning, traction, plus extra interior space. Maybe because of its eight way seating arrangement, for convenience in hauling everything from Cub Scouts to furniture. Or maybe because a lot of people couldn't decide between a sedan and a station wagon and decided on both. For the price of one.

Seventeen of the most famous funnymen in the world of show biz will be Bob Hope's guests when his first special of the new fall season airs Monday, Sept. 22 over NBC. Trading quips with Old Skisnoot on the hour-long comedy show will be Steve Allen, Shelley Berman, Red Buttons, Sid Caesar, Johnny Carson, Jack Carter, Wally Cox, Bill Dana, George Gobel, Shekky Greene, Buddy Hackett, Jack E. Leonard, Pat Paulsen, Nipsey Russell, Phil Silvers, Danny Thomas and Flip Wilson.

One of our favorite programs of last year was Male of the Species and we've been hoping for a possible rerun. Needles to say, we're happy to report Male of the Species will be repeated Sept. 11 as the first On Stage program of the coming season. In addition, the series will present another program, by the same producer and author, titled Female of the Species.

CBS informs us the ratings are great on their weekly telecasts of track and field games. Until now, track and field survived with a small hard core of fans. Yet during the Olympics it's one of the biggest events of the games. CBS gambled with soccer earlier, but it never did catch on with the U.S. public. Track and field is doing much better.

RANDOM THOUGHTS ON RECENT VIEWING:

After all the excitement over the moon landing and all the midnight oil burned over the same, we welcomed the breather offered as the Apollo 11 astronauts coasted back to earth at unbelievable speeds. It was a relief to get over that "pins and needles" feeling and get back to normal with only progress reports and regularly scheduled news broadcasts on the home screen.

Was there ever a more unlikely couple in all of show biz than Eva Gabor and Liberace? Nevertheless, they managed to come off well on The Liberace Show; were particularly funny dueting "There Must Be Something Better Than Love."

We thoroughly enjoyed seeing veteran humorists, Bob and Ray, on The Dick Cavett Show. The two have changed more than a bit over the years, but only in physical appearance. Their wry off-beat humor is still very much in evidence.

PICK OF THE PROGRAMS IN THE WEEKS AHEAD:

Today, Sat., July 26

WIDE WORLD OF SPORTS (ABC, 5 p.m.). One of the most visually appealing sports, gymnastics, is featured as the program goes to Mexico City for international competition. Also offered will be the breath-taking speed and precision flying at the National Air Races in Reno, Nev.

THE GREATEST TENOR SAXOPHONIST of them all, Coleman Hawkins, as he appeared at his last TV taping shortly before his death. The tape was included in NET's tribute to the jazzman: "In Memoriam: Coleman Hawkins (1904-1969)" on Channel 17 during NET FESTIVAL recently.

Dutchess County Fair Readies Its Opening

The Dutchess County Fair, with emphasis on "Fun and Entertainment for Everybody," is heading down the home-stretch towards its 124th edition, Aug. 19-24.

The 87-acre fairgrounds over Rhinebeck way is already bustling with activity including completion of two new buildings.

One of these is a 40-stall horse barn adding needed facilities for equine entries in the Horse Show, one of the fair's colorful annual attractions. The other will serve as headquarters of the Livestock Show, another widely acclaimed tradition.

Halls Booked Solid

Already reserved to capacity are spaces in the two big exhibition halls used for the first time for the 1968 fair. That 123rd edition attracted an all-time record 141,000 men, women and children.

"There will be something going on every minute at the

Pete's New 'Mission'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Peter Graves, star of television's "Mission: Impossible" series, has been inducted as honorary mayor of the Los Angeles suburb of Pacific Palisades for a two-year term.

1969 Fair," said a spokesman this week.

The grandstand entertainment program will be headlined by Frank Sinatra Jr. There'll also be thrill shows, harness races, a jazz festival, marching bands competition, a Dutchess County firemen's parade, a fashion show and a continuous array of variety acts in the Talent Search section. The color spectacle, "Dancing Waters," will be seen again, in an outside area this year to allow more space for Horticultural Show exhibits inside.

All of this and much more is in the offing, in addition to the fair's historic agricultural and educational features.

SYLVIA KAY as the Polish girl, Margorzata (foreground), Geoffrey Byldon as Professor Ritter (left) and Michael Bryant as Gerhard in "The Materialists," the third play in Ken Taylor's trilogy on man and his beliefs, "The Seekers," to be seen on NET Playhouse. Set in Auschwitz in 1942, the compelling drama about man's search for meaning in the face of death, will be aired on Channel 17, Friday, Aug. 1, at 8:30 p.m.

JACKIE GLEASON (CBS, 7:30 p.m.). A repeat but a real good one, taking the Honey-mooners on a lilting, laughable and bright visit to Ireland.

JOHNNY CASH (ABC, 9:30 p.m.). A good variety of guests including actor Dale Robertson, singer Lynn Kellogg, Charlie Manna and Marty Robbins. Cash sings a salute to country and western super-star Jimmie Rodgers, the late, great father of country music. There'll also be a film clip of Rodgers.

Sunday, July 27

ISSUES AND ANSWERS (ABC, 1:30 p.m.). Former Secretary of State Dean Rusk is seen in his first TV interview since leaving office.

SUMMER FOCUS 1969 (ABC, 4 p.m.). A Time For Americans special titled "The Welfare Game," giving pros and cons of public assistance in the U.S. via a panel discussion.

THE PRESIDENT ABROAD (CBS, 7:30 p.m.). A news special on President Nixon's globe-circling tour, starting in the Far East and ending in Romania. Tonight's program deals with his first stop, Manila, and his trip to Jakarta.

Monday, July 28

BLACK JOURNAL (Channels 13, & 17, 9 p.m.). The focus is on black culture, including a satirical play about the traditionally stereotyped role of the Negro in theatre and films; murals tracing ancient African history; a fashion show of contemporary Afro styles. But the highlight is amateur night at the Apollo, Harlem's showcase for black performers, wherein Sarah Vaughn reminisces about her first appearance there.

HARLEM FESTIVAL (CBS, 10 p.m.). A bright and bouncy show that's all entertainment. Before 50,000 people in Central Park, impressionist and comedian George Kirby, singer Abbey Lincoln, jazz drummer Max Roach, the Chambers Brothers, the Olatunji African dancers and drummers, the 5th Dimension and the 43-voice Edwin Hawkins gospel singers all do their thing.

DICK CAVETT (ABC, 10 p.m.). Two far out but good segments have ballet stars Edward Villella and Patricia McBride performing a classical interpretation of the "Aquarius—Let the Shine Shine In" medley from "Hair," and Dick conversing with Gay Talese, ex-New York Times writer, about his new book, "The Kingdom and the Power."

Tuesday, July 29

LIBERACE (CBS, 8:30 p.m.). The candleabra pianist sings with Nancy Wilson, jokes with comic Minnie Pearl and Mike Newman, dances with the Chelsea Pensioners, and plays several concert-style numbers on his grand piano.

DAVID FROST (Channell 5, 8:30 p.m.). The best interviewer in the game talks with folk-rock singer and composer Tim Hardin, of Woodstock, N. Y., jazz trumpeter Dizzy Gillespie, and Madalyn Murray O'Hair, who led the movement to abolish prayer in public schools.

Expo: A Scene Away From It All

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

Preparations for the Woodstock Music and Art Fair, that major pop festival which has now moved from Town of Wallkill in Orange County to White Lake in Sullivan County, have settled down to serious and large scale proportions. Since the big Aquarian Exposition is slated less than a month away (Aug. 15, 16 and 17), everything is now geared to insure three days of harmonious living in anticipation of what is expected to be the most heavily attended such festival anywhere this season.

Executives of Woodstock Ventures, Inc., sponsors of the mammoth music festival in the Catskills' Borscht Belt, have been meeting with pop music leaders and the underground press to guarantee that their ground rules will be followed. Only too well aware of the "tone" similar festivals have taken in the U.S. recently (riots accompanied big music bashes in Newport, Calif. and Denver, Colo. in June), Ventures officials are working hard to keep their "be-in" free of strife.

"We will curtail incidents between kids and police," says Artie Kornfeld, one of the Music and Art Fair promoters, "by seeing that violence and tension do not become the norm on the fair grounds" — Kornfeld and another top official of the Aquarian Expo (Mike Lang of Woodstock, N. Y.) are convinced that they can "redefine the festival's meaning" by "setting new tones" for such affairs. The "tone" or "concept" of the musical funfest is being publicized widely as "three days of PEACE and music." It has a good chance of working since it will be "a scene away from all scenes or no scene at all," says Lang, who now has a residence on Chestnut Hill Road in the art colony of Woodstock. He visualizes the many acres of free-space-to-roam on cleared land at White Lake as "perfect for a three-day holiday."

What'll make it so perfect will be the attractions to be offered by the Music and Art Fair. Free camping grounds for living outdoors will be provided. There'll also be free round-the-clock workshops in poetry, craft, theatre, pottery and music, along with free cookouts and guitar playing around centrally controlled 24 hour fires. Campers and camp followers will be welcome at free rice kitchens, to be set up for hungry music lovers with little or no bread for food. For those with no financial worries, camping supply stores will sell food for cooking out and organic food stands will vie with major delicatessen concessionaires for business.

A lot of mathematical know-how has gone into computing just how many comfort stations, first aid stations, garbage details, sources of food and water supply will be needed daily to handle the burgeoning crowds.

Such practical planning must go hand in hand with the fair's esthetic appeal—and there'll be plenty of that, too. Countless mind blowers will flourish on the fair grounds, such as invisible art things and structures that will keep music lovers guessing as to whether they're natural or manmade. For the really way-out, there'll be chimes in the woods, things to play on, poems and paintings over rocks, and anything and everything to make for good vibrations.

Grooviest of All

But the grooviest part of the whole festival for the under 30 crowd will be the chance to see all their favorite performers on the same stage.

And those will include on Friday, Aug. 15: Joan Baez, Arlo Guthrie, Tim Hardin, Richie Havens, Incredible String Band, Laura Nyro, Ravi Shankar and Sweetwater. The Saturday, Aug. 16 program will feature: Canned Heat, Creedence Clearwater Revival, Janis Joplin, Jefferson Airplane and Santana. The wind-up event Sunday, Aug. 17 boasts such all-stars as: The Band, Blood, Sweat & Tears, Iron Butterfly, Joe Cocker, Crosby, Stills & Nash, Moody Blues, The Who, Johnny Winter and, just signed, The Jimi Hendrix Experience.

If your grandmother doesn't know, your teenager will... Hendrix is possibly the highest paid rock performer since the Beatles. The Who, from Great Britain, has a rock opera called "Tommy" which is heading for the $2-million mark. Joe Cocker rose to instant fame at the Fillmore East this year, and all other groups and singles involved are among the top names in the country.

In short, it'll be a musical feast, spread for consumption in the Catskills, near heavily-touristed Monticello.

More Art in the Park

One of the most colorful annual art exhibits in the area will return for its third yearly outing on Saturday, Aug. 9 from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. That would be the picturesque titled "Art in the Courthouse Park" show, slated to be held in Monticello the second Saturday in August.

This Catskills art show has been growing every year, both in quantity and quality. In the past, it has attracted artists from a three state area and, this year, is expected to be the greatest qualitative show in the series.

Local and area artists are invited to exhibit. Amateur and professional artists are welcome to show in the three categories of oil and acrylics; sculpture; and graphics, water coloring and drawing.

Ribbons will be awarded winners in each classification and category, and artists may offer their works for sale. All interested artists in Tempo's reading area should contact Mrs. Max Rhulen, Benton Avenue, Monticello, N. Y. 12701.

Mankiewicz Signed

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Producer Quinn Martin signed Tom Mankiewicz to write the screenplay for his second movie, "Austin David."

More 'Playboying'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Publisher Hugh Hefner has begun his second year of producing his syndicated television show, "Playboy After Dark."

STAMPS

A Campus Caper Commemorated

By SYD KRONISH
 AP Newsfeatures

College controversies are not new to the American scene. In fact, one of the most famous campus capers which resulted in a landmark case before the Supreme Court occurred 150 years ago and is being commemorated on a new U.S. stamp to be issued Sept. 22.

The monumental legal decision—the Dartmouth College Case—was argued by Daniel Webster before the Supreme Court. The new 6-cent stamp will feature a portrait of Webster with Dartmouth Hall in the background. First-day ceremonies will be at Hanover, N.H., on Sept. 22.

The case involved the school's removal of its president by the board of directors. In reprisal, the New Hampshire legislature revoked Dartmouth's charter, established a rival institution and named the deposed president to head it.

The legal issue was whether a charter was a contract, and if so, could the legislature revoke a privilege it had not granted. Webster, a Dartmouth graduate, argued the case successfully before the top court and thereby reasserted the sanctity of contracts.

Collectors desiring first-day cancellations may send addressed envelopes, together with remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed, to the Postmaster, Hanover, N.H. 03755. The outside envelope to the postmaster should be endorsed "First-Day Covers 6 cent Dartmouth College Case Stamp." Cover requests must be postmarked no later than Sept. 22.

ROWAN AND MARTIN reverse their usual characters for MGM's wild comedy, "The Maltese Bippy." In fact, the movie doesn't resemble their popular TV series, Laugh-In, in any way. But police officer Dan Rowan and werewolf Dick Martin play the craziest roles of their careers in "Bippy," now showing at the 9-W Drive-In locally.

MOVIES

The April Fools

Whatever happened to Jack Lemmon, comedian? As far as we're concerned, he hasn't been particularly funny in his last few movies—"The Odd Couple" exempted, of course.

Now, in "The April Fools," currently playing at Kingston's Mayfair Theatre, he turns up as a stock broker, who gets a big promotion in his Wall Street firm and an invite to his boss's apartment to celebrate. A jet set cocktail party is in full swing when Lemmon arrives. Bewildered by the crush, the noise, the assertive guests, he's ignored until rescued by a lovely Parisienne (Catherine Deneuve). She willingly leaves the party with him, but neglects to tell him she's his host's wife.

Faster than they can drop in on an exotic nightclub and a discotheque, they find themselves head over heels in love. It matters not that she happens to be one more of her wealthy husband's possessions, and that he has drifted far emotionally from his unresponsive, superficial wife. (Aren't they always in films like this?)

Let's shuck it all, they say, jettison our respective mates and fly off to Paris together. But, as movie goers will find, there's still some decision-making to be packed into the 24 hours before their proposed departure.

For us, the only interesting thing about this film were the

The Maltese Bippy

You can start laughing already.

Dan Rowan and Dick Martin have made their first starring motion picture, MGM's "The Maltese Bippy," a sensitive little domestic film about two normal nudie movie-makers — just like the boy next door.

Complementing TV's funny pair—and living right next door—naturally—is a family of 300-year-old werewolves. Fritz Weaver's the brains of this family, luscious Julie Newmar's the beauty, and Edra Gale, a 220-pound Italian star, is the brawn.

The setting is about as pastoral as it can get, with the houses of the film characters right across the street from the fresh air and greenery of a cemetery. Whether through the influence of the cemetery or the family of werewolves next door, in "The Maltese Bippy" Dick starts getting a strong impulse to howl at the moon—the first step in turning into a werewolf himself.

If this movie, now playing at Kingston's 9-W Drive-In, sounds bizarre, the atmosphere is negated by the other people in the plot. They're as All-American as Mom (housekeeper Mildred Natwick, who gets her chance to trip over corpses); apple pie (wholesome co-ed Carol Lynley, who carries around a skull in a fish-net bag); and "The Star Spangled Banner" (out-of-work violinist Leon Askin, who doesn't know the tune but the corpse who rooms with him has it down cold).

In one scene alone, Dan and Dick appear with 15 assorted corpses. Let's just call it a "contemporary - action - adventure - romantic - horror - melodramatic comedy," and assure Rowan and Martin fans they'll probably like it (and really LOVE it if they're very young). But if you're old enough to remember Abbott and Costello, you may find yourself wondering if you've aged while Hollywood has continued to keep diving into the same old fountain of youth.

Romeo and Juliet

We've seen this Shakespeare work done time and time again on stage and on film, but never have we seen it performed with such magnificence and color. If you missed it elsewhere in the area, see it now at Woodstock's Tinker Street Cinema.

Two attractive and talented teenagers portray Romeo (Leonard Whiting) and Juliet (Olivia Hussey) and they bring this tragic romance to life as older stars have never done. The film is rich in splendor and filled with memorable scenes. R&J is pure poetry on film and fit fare for veteran fans of the bard as well as the younger generation, who'll find more than a little identification with the young lovers whose fate was sealed by the generation gap between them and their elders, and a strife-filled world they didn't create but had the misfortune to be born into.

The Love Bug

Another hit from the Walt Disney Studios that's totally amusing, filled with lots of laughs, plenty of action, and what is probably the zaniest race ever put to film. "Love Bug," now playing at three area movie houses, is fresh, light family fun. All about a car with a mind of its own and a need for feeling wanted. Before it's all over, the car with the ability to drive itself has changed the life of a discouraged racing car driver, played by Dean Jones; his

THE LARGEST ROSE GARDENS in the world, the Jackson and Perkins gardens, are in the northern Finger Lakes village of Newark. Open year round on an admission free basis, they're most popular, of course, during the summer blooming season.

Vacationing? Try Finger Lakes

A variety of cultural appeal includes the Arnot Art Gallery in Elmira; Everson Museum in Syracuse; the Planetarium in Rochester; and professional summer theaters at Corning Glass Center and Bristol Valley Playhouse.

Fun for Summer

Numbered among the most popular of summer activities are fishing, swimming, boating, skiing, skin diving, sunbathing and just plain relaxing on the many beaches. There is public access to all major lakes and in addition to many parks, there are more than 50 boat launching sites.

The Finger Lakes Region is ideally located between New York and Niagara Falls, the latter being one of the seven wonders of the world. Most travel is by private automobile and last year over 4½ million people visited the area. Most found it easily accessible and a very economical area in which to vacation. The main east-west highways are Route 104 to the north, 5 and 230 which parallels the N.Y.S. Thruway and traverses the northern end of some of the lakes with Route 17 (from New York City to Lake Erie) covering the southern section. Primary north-south routes are 133, 14, and 15 along with Interstate 81 to the east (Cortland to Syracuse).

Among its top attractions are the Corning Glass Center in Corning; the world renowned Jackson & Perkins Rose Gardens in Newark; and the five Finger Lakes District wineries—four in Hammondsport and one in Naples. These are all open year round offering interesting, educational and free tours. The modern Finger Lakes Race Track at Farmington near Canandaigua along with the two amusement centers—Roseland Park at Canandaigua and Eldridge Park at Elmira—are musts for most visitors.

Special events are the order of the day every day with practically every community sponsoring festivals, parades and carnivals. Those which draw the most interest include road racing at Watkins Glen featuring the Grand Prix of the United States every fall; Mormon Pageant, which takes place on Hill Cumorah near Palmyra and is one of the foremost religious presentations in the country; Naples Grape Festival; National Lake Trout Derby at Geneva; Seneca Falls Aqua Festival; Central New York Antique Show in Cortland; Lilac Festival in Rochester (the Flower City); York State Craft Fair in Ithaca; Nunda Fun Days; Steam Pageant in Canandaigua; Williamson Apple Blossom Festival; Gorham Pageant of Bands and the Water Carnival on Lake Keuka at Penn Yan.

Travel aids to a fun-filled vacation in the Finger Lakes Region include a color brochure which is available free and a 152-page Travel Guide which is available for 50 cents. Both publications can be obtained by writing to Finger Lakes Association, Lake Street, Penn Yan, New York 14527.

The Oldest County Fair

The Columbia County Fair will run five nights and four days this year, at Chatham, opening Aug. 28 at 5 p.m. and running through Labor Day. This adds an extra night to the schedule of New York State's oldest county fair.

There will be a full program of entertainment and all exhibitors have been instructed to be ready for the early opening. Headlining the stage attraction in front of the grandstand opening night will be the Pete Williams Country and Western Show, featuring Dave Allen.

Again this year admission will be free to all grandstand attractions at the Chatham fair. And so far the 19th annual Chatam fair fireman's parade competition has attracted 28 volunteer fire companies and 17 marching bands and drum corps.

Parade Date

The parade will be the Saturday afternoon feature of the Fair.

J. Vincent Hartigan, fair secretary and parade chairman, has extended an open invitation to all fire companies and their ladies auxiliaries to march at the Chatham fair. He said those who may have been inadvertently passed over when the invitations were mailed out need only drop him a line at Chatham, 12037, and all information needed for participation will be sent along promptly.

Hartigan added that all fire units, auxiliaries, bands and drum corps marching in the parade will be competing for trophies in a dozen or more classes.

Butterfield & Hardin at Tanglewood

Woodstock Headliners

Among the top blues artists headlining this week's Tanglewood Trends Concert were Tim Hardin and The Butterfield Blues Band, all Woodstockers in residence. Hardin, who has lived in Woodstock for the past year, and Paul Butterfield and his group, who recently moved into a house on Mead's Mountain, performed in the 6,000 seat music shed at Tanglewood's Lenox, Mass. grounds Tuesday night.

Both Hardin and the Butterfield Band are considered outstanding artists on today's blues scene. Paul Butterfield of The Butterfield Blues Band is one of the rare white musicians who can authentically play the blues. Growing up on the outskirts of Chicago's Black area, Butterfield came naturally to 'Soul' and the basic feeling of the blues. The Butterfield Blues Band sound is a mixture of relaxed country blues infused with aggressive, hard driving urban blues.

Tim Hardin wrote one of the most impressive of recent songs, 'If I Were a Carpenter,' and has also recorded it. Hardin, a 26-year old guitar and piano playing singer and writer, thinks of himself as a jazz artist, though there is a strong undertone of blues and country elements in his music. His voice is soft and his forte is the gentle song.

Tanglewood's contemporary Trends Series is something new for the classical and symphonic environs of its Berkshire Festival. The Hardin-Butterfield concert (folk singer Joni Mitchell also appeared) was the third such event of this season. The fourth of the Tuesday Contemporary Trends Concerts is July 29, when Mahalia Jackson headlines an evening of gospel and jazz which also features Ornette Coleman and the Thad Jones-Mel Lewis orchestra. Tickets are on sale by mail or in person at the Tanglewood box office, Lenox, Mass. 01240, or phone reservations may be made by calling (413) 637-1600.

Sidewalk Art Blossoms Like a Summer Flower

If viewed from the air on the weekend on August 9 and 10, the streets of Mystic, Connecticut, may suggest the petals of a luxuriant summer flower. At closer range, the "flower" will be seen to consist of the works of 350 artists exhibiting in the 12th annual Mystic Outdoor Art Festival.

During the two-day Festival, art conscious browsers mingling with tourists and local citizens — all out to enjoy this nationally-famous summer show — will swell the famed seaport village population by over 50,000.

Within strolling distance of the outdoor art exhibits, visitors will find the world-famous Mystic Seaport, where the Charles Morgan, the last wooden whaling ship, lies berthed alongside other historically important ships. The Seaport is an authentic replica of a 19th century whaling port.

Jazz Outdoors

On Saturday evening, Aug. 9, Mystic Art Association will present an outdoor jazz concert, featuring the John McGill Sextet.

Located one mile south of Interstate 95, midway between New York and Boston, Mystic is also accessible by air, rail, and ship lines linking the Mystic-New London area with major Eastern cities.

Besides the Seaport, Festival viewers will find other points of interest in the area, including: United States Submarine Base in Groton, Coast Guard Academy in New London, and Connecticut College in New London, where the annual American Dance Festival will be in progress.

With the "flower" of the Mystic Outdoor Art Festival at its center, the "garden" of eastern Connecticut will offer the visitor his pick of seasonal delights on Aug. 9 and 10.

Ellenville Sets Outdoor Art Show

With show date less than a month away, plans are underway for the Second Annual Outdoor Art Show to be held in Ellenville's Liberty Square. Titled "Art in the Square," the show will be held Saturday, Aug. 23 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Like last year's show, this year's will feature the exhibition and sale of works by local and area artists. More than 10 artists are expected to bring sculpture, paintings and ceramic work to the show. There will be judging in each of these categories with first, second and third prizes awarded in each area. Judging will take place at 4 p.m. on the day of the show.

This year's show, which promises to be bigger and better than the first outing of the exhibit, is sponsored by the Ellenville Art Council, a group of local residents who have worked hard to assure the show as an annual event. Cooperating with the Council is the Ellenville Area Chamber of Commerce, Ellenville Village Board and the Town of Wawarsing, which have voted funds for the project.

There is no application fee for participating artists, and all area artists, both amateur and professional, are urged to take part in the show. Those interested should write or call Mrs. Morris Kaufman, 48 Elm Street, Ellenville, (914) 647-5334 for application blanks.

Dining Out

It has to be good when a fellow like Frank Sinatra reserves the whole place for a private dinner party. And good it is from its ocean-fresh Chesapeake Bay selected fried oysters to its charcoal broiled T-bone steak.

When we heard the ever-swinging Sinatra (idol of our teens and not too far down the ladder now that we've reached middle age) had supped at Mariner's Harbor Restaurant in Highland recently, we hurried down pronto. True, Sinatra came up the river by boat and we motored overland, but 'was easy to see why he had high praise for this "on the river" emporium.

Mariner's Harbor boasts a view of the water that makes even an everyday chicken in the basket meal enjoyable. Its shaded brick patio, outdoor tables, cozy bar and rustic siding all add to its attractions, but it was the live lobster that really caught our eye.

One of the few restaurants in the area where a guest is allowed to select his own lobster (live and from Maine), the Harbor serves up this delicacy for $7.50 on a dinner that includes baked potato and tossed salad.

For the same price, a diner with a heartier appetite can avail himself of the Surf and Turf dinner.

From there on out, the prices cater to every pocketbook. T-bone steak, perfectly charcoal-broiled, is especially appetizing after a full day on the water. It's also appealing to those who have put in their eight hours at the office and it's just under $5.

The best Italian dish at Mariner's is the veal parmigian at $2.75. A specialty of the house and a meal in itself is the charcoal broiled petite steak, which hits the scales and the wallet at $3.25.

Chicken in the basket (and who's to care if you eat it waterside with your fingers) is a low $2.45. Sea food dinners, such as fried clams, fried shrimp, fried scallops, swordfish steaks and fillet sole, are all served with french fried potatoes and cole slaw. They range in price from $1.95 to $2.95. And if you're not going all-out and having the live lobster, you should definitely try the Fishermen's Platter (flounder, shrimp and scallops) or the lobster tails.

Appetizers lean seaward, too; include marinated herring, shrimp cocktail, stuffed clams and clams on the half shell.

The Harbor is also a delightful place for lunch; offers an inexhaustible array of sandwiches, from charburgers and white meat turkey to ham and cheese. The fried onion rings are delicious and the cheese cake is the perfect topper for any lunch or dinner.

Like Sinatra says on his latest and probably greatest records, "My Way," he's lived it the way he wanted to for his first 50 years. His way, beyond and above Ava and Mia, included sampling the fare at Mariner's Harbor. Now that we've followed suit, we'd say the leader of the Clan knows what it's all about. (BY TOBIE GEERTSEMA)

TIM HARDIN

Musician's Musician

One of the most original composer-singers on the music scene today, Tim Hardin, will appear in concert at the Woodstock Playhouse this Monday, July 28. Hardin, considered a main force and influence on music's "in-scene" presently, comes to the Woodstock stage next week following a triumphal concert this week at Tanglewood.

Still in his '20s, Hardin has acquired a large following of aficionados in the field of folk, jazz, rock and easy listening; is one of a few performers around today who cannot be categorized into any one musical "bag." As a song writer and performer, he has earned a reputation as a "musician's musician;" is widely admired for the perfect simplicity of his instrumental accompaniment.

While he gleefully raves for singing his own compositions, other performers of note also record his songs, including Joan Baez, Bobby Darin, The Youngbloods, and Peter, Paul and Mary. Hardin's fame hinges on the writing of such songs as "If I Were a Carpenter" and "Reason To Believe," songs that are tender and happy, full of human love and belief.

Hardin has appeared on TV, star.

most notably on Kraft Music Hall, and his records and concert appearances have all been super-successes. Among his best-selling albums are the long-playing "Tim Hardin III," recorded live at his New York Town Hall concert, and his latest LP for Columbia, "Suite For Susan Moore and Damion — We Are One, One, All in One." This latter is a tribute to his wife and small son; was recorded at his home in Woodstock — a feat which required the moving of studio technicians and equipment from New York City to the Catskills.

Hardin's concert at the Woodstock Playhouse Monday night should be one of the greatest programs ever seen there. When Tim Hardin gives a concert, it is always an exciting scene and tickets are always at a premium. For reservations, call OR 9-2015.

Folk Dance: Fast Becoming Popular

INTERNATIONAL FOLK AND SQUARE DANCE is all the rage in Woodstock these summer Friday nights. That's because Ron Sanders (left) has an infallible knack for getting people at all age levels involved in such dances. Sanders' ability at popularizing folk dances of Greece, Israel, the Balkans and the U.S. has led to mounting excitement about the programs he's offering currently in the art colony. His enjoyable and informal evening of folk dancing activity are being sponsored by Performing Arts of Woodstock and are open to all. Take a night out and find out for yourself what everyone else is talking about. All it requires to get in on the fun is a visit to Woodstock's Town Hall any Friday from 8 p.m. on.

For Mohonk Mountain House — Chamber Music

AMONG THE MANY, MANY SPECIAL EVENTS slated at Mohonk Mountain House, New Paltz, this summer, in celebration of its big Centennial Year, are two upcoming chamber music concerts. Co-sponsored by Mohonk, the Huguenot Historical Society, and Hudson Valley Philharmonic Society, the concerts will be held in the unusual, elegant and Victorian settings of the famous resort-hotel. Under the baton of Claude Monteux, famed flutist and conductor of Hudson Valley Philharmonic, musicians of this award-winning orchestra will appear in concert at Mohonk on Aug. 6 and again on Aug. 20. In Tempo's photo, The Monteux Chamber Players are posed beneath the columns of the famed Vanderbilt Mansion in Dutchess County. At Mohonk they, and other orchestral groups, will play in the period parlors or in the great outdoors. For tickets and information on the August concerts, or for reservations, call Mohonk Mountain House, 255-1000, or Mrs. Kurt Matzdorf, 255-1938.

Myth, Fantasy, Satire Make for 'Celebration'

There's something very appealing about "Celebration," the musical now playing through Aug. 3 at Woodstock Playhouse. Using a dash of myth, a touch of fantasy, a bit of ritual and a soupcon of satiric realism, it tells about the coming-of-age of an orphan. The plot is familiar: poor orphan disrupts and eventually destroys the decadent structure of a rich man's life. But the music is far from familiar; is exceptionally fine and highly successful. That's because Tom Jones and Harvey Schmidt, who teamed previously for that wonderful offering, "The Fantasticks," are responsible for "Celebration," too. The Woodstock Playhouse production is also aided by an amazing performance by that amazing actor named Gene Nye. All in all, "Celebration" is earthy and often exciting entertainment. When poor boy vies with rich man for fair maiden, it's hardly news. What is cause for rejoicing, however, is the very original presentation of the youthful hero's struggle. There's an electricity about this summer versus winter September Song that was missing from similar plot lines. Capable Cast The joys of just being alive, from primitive days on, "e narrated by Paul Keith as Potemkin, the Narrator. Barbara Houston is a glowing angel (the fair maiden of the plot sought by the orphan hero portrayed by Gene Nye). But she is at her best in a most non-angelic rock number, a raucous plea to "Be Somebody." Multi-talented William Metz is as sinister and sardonic as his role of Mr. Rich requires him to be. But he can be appealing, too, when brooding over his lost youth. There's still more than a week left to go to see "Celebration," including Saturday matinees at 2 p.m. And see it you should between now and Aug. 3 for it is truly a delightful musical that strikes the imagination. kindly mechanic (Buddy Hackett); and David Tomlinson, a pompous car dealer and Jones' racing rival. We think you'll like this whimsical story about Herbie, the Volkswagen. You can see it at the Lyceum in Saugerties, the Lyceum in Red Hook, or the Rosedale Theatre.

Son of the Sheik

Vintage though it may be, this film has never been shown on TV. That may be reason enough alone for oldsters who remember Rudolph Valentino and youngsters who have never seen his classic films to hie themselves to the Guild Gallery Theatre in Woodstock this weekend. Once there (show starts at 8:30 p.m.), they'll see the great Valentino in the dual role of the Sheik and his son. They'll also see vamping Vilma Banky and beauteous Agnes Ayres.

For extra, added fun, the program also includes short features of Charlie Chaplain, W. C. Fields, Woody Woodpecker, and news highlights of 1940 such as war scenes in Norway, Holland, Belgium, Italy, France and Dunkerque, along with footage devoted to FDR's victory for a third term.

The Impossible Years

When we saw the Broadway stage version of this film, it was a thin comedy about the generation gap, but it had its moments because of comedian Alan King's punchy, uproarious delivery in the lead male role. The movie version, now on the double bill at 9-W Drive-in, is no so funny with David Niven in the King Part. As a psychiatrist unable to cope with his teenage daughter, David is exceedingly dull and the whole mishmash comes through as a TV-type situation comedy geared to the amusement of only a very few. The cast also includes Lola Albright, Chad Everett, and Christine Ferrare.

Other Choices

GOODBYE, COLUMBUS is probably worth a drive to the Community Theatre in Catskill if you happen to be a Philip Roth (Portnoy's Complaint) fan. It's a well done film, based on Roth's first book, about a disenchanted young man and the well-to-do girl with whom he has a summer fling. Comes highly recommended because of excellent plot and fine performances by Richard Benjamin (of He and She TV fame) and a gloriously talented newcomer, Ali MacGraw.

CHITTY CHITTY BANG BANG, currently at the Starr in Rhinebeck, should be fun for the whole family. It's a lavish, multi-million-dollar bon-bon of sure-fire children's entertainment, chock full of fantasy, gadgetry (including a flying car), adventure, singing, and dancing. Dick Van Dyke is an inventor who zooms off to fun, danger and organizing a revolt of children in a far-off land.
